FRANK CONVICTED, ASSERTS INNOCENCE

LIND QUITS MEXICO; WILSON'S MESSAGE GOES TO CONGRESS

The President Will Personally Present Views on Situation to Joint Session of House and Senate.

CONFERENCE IS HELD AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Wilson Reads Message to Two Congressional Foreign Relations Committees and It Is Given Approval.

Mexico City, August 25.—President Wilson's personal representative, John Lind, will leave the Mexican capital tomorrow, proceeding to Vera Cruz.

Mr. Lind called on Foreign Minister Gamboa today to say good-bye, but there was nothing in their conversation regarding the resumption of negotiations or to indicate that Mexico would recede from her position.

Mr. Lind will sail from Vera Cruz at an early date, presumably on a battleship. It is expected that William Bayard Hale, who has been in Mexico City in an official capacity, will accompany Mr. Lind or leave soon afterward.

Huerta Calling Army Officers.

Rumors persist that General Trevino, who has been summoned to the capital, will become provisional president, but confirmation is lacking and this report is offset by another that General Huerta has called in most of the retired officers and many of those on detached service to report for duty.

General Felix Diaz, who started for Japan as special Mexican ambassador, also is said to have received a summons to return to the capital.

Mexicans and foreign residents manifest great uneasiness over the possible development in the Mexican situation through the presentation of President Wilson's message to congress, but the government is uncommunicative and will maintain its reserve until after the message has been read.

MESSAGE ON MEXICO READ TO CONGRESSMEN

Washington, August 25.—President Wilson will read his message on the Mexican situation at the capitol tomorrow. This was decided at midnight, following the receipt of a message from John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson in Mexico, that he had said good-bye to foreign Minister Gamboa, and would leave Mexico City tomorrow. So far as Mr. Lind is concerned, he has been terminated. The United States will receive any further proposals through Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy, of the American embassy.

The policy of the United States was outlined to the members of the two congressional committees of foreign relations today at a conference at the white house by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan. The president's message received practically unanimous approval. The future course of this government will be one of non-interference, in the hope that the effect of its present efforts and the pressure of foreign governments will constitute a moral suasion that ultimately will bring about peace in Mexico.

The message makes it plain that there will be no lifting of the embargo on arms, that no faction or government in Mexico will be allowed to receive munitions of war from the United States. If necessary, the president proposes to increase the American border patrol to enforce this policy.

Wilson Cites Precedent.

The president cites in his message, as a precedent for the policy he proposes to pursue, the action of President Hayes in withholding recognition from Diaz for more than a year after the latter had gained control of the Mexican government.

During tonight's conference, the president read to the committees not only the full text of his own message but the notes exchanged between John Lind and Huerta.

President Wilson's message is one of friendship, not of hostility, and precedes a policy of absolute non-interference. It proclaims to the

FARM CURRENCY WINS IN CAUCUS

Paper Based on Agricultural Products on the Same Basis as Commercial Paper for Banking Purposes.

Washington, August 25.—An agricultural currency amendment to the administration currency bill was adopted by the house democratic caucus today. After several preliminary skirmishes, in which other amendments were beaten, the caucus, without a dissenting vote, adopted an amendment agreed to both by the "insurgent" contingent and banking and currency committee to put paper based on agricultural products on the same basis as commercial paper for banking purposes.

It also would extend the maturity of notes and bills admitted to discount under the amendment to ninety days, instead of the originally proposed sixty days. This action disposed of the last of the big controversial issues in the administration currency bill.

Text of the Amendment.

The amendment, the result of many conferences and concurred in by administration leaders and those unsuccessfully seeking other amendments, reads:

"Upon the indorsement of any member bank, any federal reserve bank may discount notes and bills of exchange arising out of commercial transactions, that is, notes and bills of exchange issued or drawn for agricultural, industrial or commercial purposes or the proceeds of which have been used or may be used for such purposes the federal reserve board to have the right to determine or define the character of the paper thus eligible for discount, within the meaning of this act. But such definition shall not include notes or bills issued or drawn for the purpose of carrying or trading in stocks, bonds or other investment securities, nor shall anything herein contained be construed to prohibit such notes and bills of exchange, secured by staple agricultural products or other goods, wares or merchandise from being eligible for such discount.

"Notes and bills admitted to discount under the terms of this paragraph must have a maturity of not more than ninety days.

"We have won all we contended for," was the comment of Representative Neeley, of Kansas, in charge of the opposition to the bill.

"The Glass amendment," added Representative Henry, of Texas, "comes practically to the amendment I have advocated during the last three months."

Says Henry Surrendered.

"The re-discount, section as thus amended," replied Chairman Glass, "does not comprehend a single one of the wild and absurd suggestions which had been proposed. Mr. Henry surrendered solely and simply because he was beaten. He jumped after the boat left the wharf."

Other members of the committee made similar statements.

Chairman Glass said tonight that the amendment did not discriminate either for or against the farmer, that the New England shoe manufacturer or clothing maker could present their goods for discount as much as the farmers could, and in the final analysis "the whole thing is left to the federal reserve board or the regional reserve bank which does the discounting."

During today's session the caucus defeated an amendment by Representative Wilson, of Arkansas, to exclude from rediscounting at federal reserve banks, notes or bills intended for dealing in futures or for marginal trading on agricultural products. Representative Gray, of Indiana, in the principal speech of the day, ineffectually sought to divide the federal reserve districts into four geographical divisions.

BETS ON HORSE RACES BY HIGH U. S. OFFICIALS

Washington, August 25.—Evidence has been found that betting on horse races, according to the police, has not been confined to the clerks in the government departments, but that certain high officials also were arrested in the navy yard. The investigators declared today the "men higher up" made their wagers through subordinates, and as a result their apprehension will be difficult.

The inquiry in the handbook betting industry in the departments, the police say, has led them to discover that it was conducted by a "ring" of gamblers with resources of upwards of a half million dollars. For years, it is said, this "ring" divided their profits annually ranging up into the thousands of dollars.

ATTENDANCE MARK SOUGHT BY LOCALS

Want 200,000 for the Season. "Birmingham Must Be Beaten," Is Slogan—Field Day Wednesday.

As the Southern league teams come thundering down the stretch, with the Crackers having a chance to overhaul the Mobile Gulls and win the third pennant for the Gate City of the South, the attendance proposition enters into the discussion.

Atlanta must beat Mobile for the pennant. Birmingham must be beaten for the attendance honor. At present, the Coal Barons are leading the Crackers by a couple of thousand paid attendance for the season.

The season record of paid attendance is now held by Atlanta, 196,000. The local club hopes to surpass this figure this season. "Two hundred thousand and Birmingham must be beaten" is the slogan that is being adopted.

With the contesting for the pennant at such an interesting point, the attendance should be large for the remainder of the season, but the fact that Birmingham is again challenging Atlanta's right to be called the best ball town in the Southern league has awakened an enthusiasm akin to the pennant scrap.

Merchants Behind Move.

The local merchants have lined up behind the ball club in their endeavor to establish an attendance record that will require considerable effort to pass in years to come.

First, several merchants have agreed to present prizes to the members of the Atlanta and Memphis teams for a field day which will be held Wednesday. This being a half holiday for the grocers and butchers, a great crowd is sure to be on hand to witness the field sports and the ball game.

Five events will be contested. Here are the events and the prizes that will be donated to the winners in each event:

100-yard Dash—Hat. Law Bros.

50-yard Dash—$5.

Fungo Hitting—Two silk shirts, Parks-Chambers-Hardwick company.

Long distance Throwing—Silk umbrella, George Muse Clothing company.

To Close Shops.

To help all they can in bolstering the attendance locally the following merchants have agreed to allow their employees as many days off the remainder of the season as will be consistent with the maintenance of their business.

W. A. Chapin Insurance company, Royal Insurance company, Georgia Railway and Power company, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, United States Bank, Lowry National bank, V. H. Kriegshaber & Son. And there are others that will be announced tomorrow.

Atlanta is baseball mad. Local fans want Atlanta to win the pennant. Local business men want them to have the largest attendance and this proves that Atlanta is the best baseball city in the south.

The Atlanta spirit is working overtime.

CONSTITUTION'S EXTRA TELLS ATLANTA OF THE VERDICT IN FRANK CASE

Within three minutes after Foreman Fred Winburn had announced the verdict of guilty in the Frank trial, The Constitution's extra, giving full details of incidents in the courtroom during the entire time the jury was deliberating, and all exclusive facts after that dramatic moment, was on the streets.

It was conceded that The Constitution's extra was the most complete issue of the day. Not only did it flash to the anxious readers of Atlanta the first news that Frank had been doomed, but it also went to the suburban districts and out on every train leaving the city.

This piece of enterprise was made possible by having a corps of well-trained newspaper men on the scene, and having every arrangement made beforehand to cover the verdict without the waste of a single second.

It will be remembered that the news of the tragic death of Mary Phagan was first told to the people of the city by an extra issued by The Constitution on the morning of April 27, within a short time after the body was found in the basement of the National Pencil company.

Friends Tell Frank in Tower Of Jury's Verdict of Guilty; Prisoner Cheers Weeping Wife

It was exactly 5:50 o'clock before Frank knew of the jury's verdict.

Seated in his quarters in the Tower, the prisoner and his wife chatted of things to come in the future. They both smiled and appeared happy at the apparent thought that the setting sun would bring him freedom.

In the office of Sheriff Mangum, located on the first floor of the Tower, Rabbi Marx and a group of stanch friends of the accused debated as to whom would bring the message and shatter the one remaining ray of hope they had buoyed up in the prisoner. Several close friends of Frank, including Dr. Rosenberg, the family physician, were summoned on the telephone and asked to hasten to the prison and convey the news to the prisoner. A great crowd gathered in front of the Tower, but it was an orderly gathering composed for the most part of negro men and women who had gathered at the same spot night and morning to get a glimpse of the prisoner as he went from and returned to the jail after an all-day ordeal.

Dr. Rosenberg Arrives.

Just a few minutes after 5:50, Doctor Rosenberg, the Frank family physician, arrived at the jail. He was persuaded to convey the news to the prisoner and his wife.

Frank was seated at the right side of his wife. They were both smiling. Around them grouped male friends. Intuition probably told them that bad news was coming, for on the face of each one disappointment and sorrow could be read. As Rabbi Marx, followed closely by Doctor Rosenberg, entered the cell, Frank left his seat to greet them. If he anticipated any news he did not betray it in his greeting.

"I am glad you came up," Frank assured his family physician.

Rabbi Marx, solemn and dejected, moved to where Dr. B. Wildauer and other friends were seated. There were traces of tears in his eyes.

"Leo, the jury has found you guilty," Dr. Rosenberg said.

Influenced by Mob Law.

The silence was dreadful. Mrs. Frank cuddled closer to her boyish looking husband. There was a wild stare in her eyes. No one in the cell seemed to grasp the meaning of the fearful news. Only Frank seemed to be composed.

"My God! Even the jury was influenced by mob law."

"I am as innocent as I was one year ago."

His wife swooned away when she heard the awful news.

Judge Roan will not pass the death sentence on Frank for some days. He has not definitely decided when.

Attorneys Arnold and Rosser will make a motion for a new

"I Am as Innocent Today as I Was One Year Ago," He Cries—"The Jury Has Been Influenced by Mob Law"—"I Am Stunned by News," Declares Rabbi Marx, One of Prisoner's Closest Friends—Defense Plans to Carry Case to Supreme Court in Order to Secure New Trial—Judge Roan Will Defer Sentence For a Few Days.

OVATION FOR JURY AND SOLICITOR GIVEN BY CROWD WAITING ON STREET

Judge Roan Thanks Jurymen for Services During Four Long, Hard Weeks, and Tells Members He Hopes They Will Find Their Families Well—Courtroom Was Cleared by Order of Judge Before Jury Was Brought in to Give Its Verdict—"I'm Sorry for Frank's Wife and His Mother," Says Solicitor Dorsey.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil factory; president of the B'nai B'rith, graduate of Cornell university, student of literature, and until recently regarded as a man of unblemished character and reputation, and a leader among his people, has been declared guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan, a 13-year-old employee of the factory of which Frank is the head.

At 4 minutes to 5 o'clock a jury of his peers filed slowly into the courtroom, which for four weeks has been the scene of the greatest legal battle in the history of the state.

The room had been cleared of the morbidly curious who for days have listened to the fierce fight for and against the young man. Only the newspaper men, Sheriff Mangum, his deputies, Solicitor Dorsey and Frank Hooper, a few lawyers and some close personal friends of the defendant were in the room.

VERDICT WAS EASY TO READ.

On the face of each juror was the drawn look of men who had been compelled, through duty, to do an awful thing—to consign a fellow creature to the gallows. There was no mistaking that look. The strongest of the men shook as if some strange ailment had stricken them.

It took no student of human nature to read that the verdict was the ultimate one of guilt.

A hush fell over the courtroom. The scraping of a chair across the floor, the rustle of a fan, the shuffling of a foot would have been welcome sounds. The silence was fearsome.

Slowly, with voice that trembled, Fred Winburn, foreman of the jury, read the verdict.

Immediately there was the hustle and bustle of reporters and strident voices calling out "guilty" over the telephones to Atlanta's three newspapers.

The sound reached the street below and a shout went up from the waiting mob outside.

The end had come to the longest criminal trial on record in this state.

JUDGE THANKS THE JURY.

Just after the ballot was polled Judge Roan said:

"Gentlemen, I am now taking leave of you. You have been here for a month, and it has been a hard and trying time for all of us.

"Gentlemen, I want to thank you for your faithful service and consideration of all details in this most arduous case."

The judge's voice broke at this point, but bravely collecting his composure, he continued:

"Gentlemen, I hope you find your families well."

Frank was not in the courtroom.

Luther Rosser, Reuben Arnold or Herbert Haas, attorneys for the defense, were not present when the verdict was read. Each was in his residence, recuperating from the weeks of terrific strain undergone in their masterful fight. They were represented by Stiles Hopkins, a member of Rosser's firm, and Luther Z. Rosser, Jr., son of the attorney.

The verdict was reached at 3:39 o'clock and was read in court at 4:56 o'clock.

FRANK HEARS FATE IN TOWER.

Over in the Tower, oblivious of his fate, sat Leo M. Frank, his arm around his faithful wife. His presence in court had been waived.

When, some three-quarters of an hour later, he learned the news, he bore up with fortitude. To a friend he said:

"My God! Even the jury was influenced by mob law."

"I am as innocent as I was one year ago."

His wife swooned away when she heard the awful news.

Judge Roan will not pass the death sentence on Frank for some days. He has not definitely decided when.

As Bells Tolled, Dorsey Closed Magnificent Argument Which Fastened Crime on Frank

As the big bell in the Catholic church tolled the hour of 12 o'clock Solicitor Dorsey concluded his remarkable plea for the conviction of Leo Frank with the dreadful words—"Guilty, guilty, guilty!"

It was just at this hour more than five months ago that little Mary Phagan entered the pencil factory to draw her pittance of $1.20.

The tolling of the bell and the dread sound of the words cut like a chill to the hearts of many who shivered involuntarily.

It was the conclusion of the most remarkable speech which has ever been delivered in the Fulton county courthouse—a speech which will go down in history stamping Hugh Dorsey as one of the greatest prosecuting attorneys of this age.

Arnold Makes Protest.

Only after Attorney Reuben R. Arnold had registered a vigorous protest against the action of the spectators who clapped their hands in tumultuous applause as Solicitor Hugh Dorsey entered the courtroom Monday morning was the solicitor allowed to continue his speech which was interrupted by adjournment Saturday.

When court convened at 9 o'clock there were more people outside of the courthouse unable to gain admission than there were inside and about two minutes before the hour of opening court a roar of cheers told the spectators inside that the solicitor was coming. His entrance was the signal for the outbreak of approval of his wonderful effort Saturday.

Mr. Arnold immediately protested and declared that such outbreaks had no place in a court of justice.

"Mr. Sheriff" said Judge Roan from the bench when order had been restored, "I see that there is a large crowd in the hall and that many of them do not seem to understand what is required of them in a courtroom. If there is the least disturbance after the jury comes in, I want you to clear the room of all but officials.

"We don't want to spoil the work of four weeks by any unseemly actions at this time and we are not going to allow such disturbance."

The jury was then brought in and the solicitor took up his speech. Mr. Dorsey's voice was hoarse when he started and it seemed as though he had received no refreshment from the rest over Sunday. Like a long distance runner who has kept a hard pace during the race and who at the finish is staggering toward the goal line and "running on his nerve," the solicitor renewed his attack on the defendant.

As he went on his throat seemed to get better and his vocal cords appeared to loosen. He was continually harassed during the morning, however, by Attorneys Arnold and Rosser, who declared he was making false statements and that parts of his speech were "improper and insulting."

"Gentlemen of the jury," began the solicitor, "I am even more exhausted this morning than I was Saturday. My throat is in such shape that I fear I cannot finish this case or do justice to it.

"Had we had an adjournment Saturday, I might have finished and his honor might have sharpened you, so that you might have brought in your verdict this morning and been free.

Renews Attack on Statement.

"When I was compelled to stop Saturday I was in the midst of my analysis of the statement of this defendant. I am not going into an exhaustive analysis of that, because it is not necessary and it would inconvenience you uselessly and, too, I haven't the strength to carry it out.

"There are, however, certain parts of the defendant's statement that merit consideration. He stated to you, after his honor had ruled out our evidence, that Lee had visited him at police headquarters and that after he consulted with Rabbi Marx that he decided it would be best not to leave his dear wife run the gauntlet of newshotters, the interviews of reporters and the quizzing of detectives.

"Well, Frank tells you his wife actually came there and that he would not let her come there again. He says she was turned away by her two brothers-in-law and Rabbi Marx. Yet Frank makes no attempt to prove by them that his wife was there. He wants that testimony from his own, unsupported statement.

"There is no evidence anywhere that she ever went to see her husband at the station house, and I tell you, gentlemen of the jury, that a true wife, ever lived who would refuse to go to see her husband when he was in such trouble as that, provided she believed him innocent. No wife, believing her husband innocent, would hesitate to face snapshotters, interviewers or detectives to get to see her husband."

Defense Attorneys Object.

"Your honor," interrupted Mr. Arnold, "we have sat here and listened to one of the most unfair speeches I have ever heard and we have kept silent, but we do object to this unwarranted attack on the defendant's wife."

Solicitor Dorsey submitted that part of Frank's statement to the jury where he claimed that his wife did visit him at police station, then he submitted that the defense had not tried to prove it by other witnesses, and declared that he was making no attack on the wife, but merely stating why she had not visited her husband. Judge Roan allowed him to go on.

"Let the gelled jade wince, we—" began the solicitor in powerful voice, which apparently did not have when he began his argument.

"Now, your honor, I do object to that," interrupted Mr. Arnold, "when we make a legal objection to the solicitor's statements, he has no right to say, 'Let the gelled jade wince.'"

Attorney Rosser also registered an objection.

The solicitor was allowed to go on with his speech and the defense made its formal objection to the court against that part of it.

Mr. Dorsey then took up another feature of Frank's statement.

"Frank said that Conley could write and he adds, 'I have received too many notes from him asking to borrow money.' Why the one to know that, Frank also corroborates Conley's statement in regard to the watch which Conley swore was getting on the installment plan and Frank says he gave the information to the police that Conley could write and the police and detectives knew it. Then he did not, and Harry Scott, Franks' own detective, has told you that Frank never gave him this information.

"If Frank knew, as he says he did, that Conley could write, why didn't he tell the police that? Scott declares to you that Frank never mentioned the subject.

"Gentlemen, it was only when the detectives, after laborious effort and despite Frank's silence, found out that the negro who was denying he could write, could really do so, that they obtained from him his first affidavit in which he told part of the things that happened that day.

"Frank says to you that he knew Conley could write. Then why did not he tell the police of that fact, when he knew that the written notes were believed to be the key that would unlock this mystery?

Dorsey Turns to Frank.

"By your own statement," continued the solicitor, addressing Frank, "you saw the notes at the station house that Sunday morning when the body was found, and you said not a word about knowing that Conley could write. You never said it then and you never did tell it to the police authorities, and you have never told it to the negro who tried to place the blame on a negro.

"Well, I won't discuss that farther. It's not necessary," continued the solicitor. He then took up another phase of the statement made by the defendant.

"Frank tells you in regard to that visit that Conley made to the jail with the police when Conley wanted to confront him that he did not see Conley because he wanted first to get permission of his attorney, Mr. Rosser, who was trying a case at Tallulah Falls that day, and he says that if he could have got Mr. Rosser's permission that he would have seen Conley or anybody else that day, but I tell you, gentlemen, that Mr. Rosser got back from Tallulah in a few hours, and yet Frank never did see Conley.

"I tell you, gentlemen of the jury, that if you have got sense enough to get out of a shower of rain, you know that never before in the history of the Anglo-Saxon race and never in the history of the African race in this country, did a negro accuse a white man and that white man, with Anglo-Saxon blood in his veins and claiming innocence, refuse to face his accuser.

"I'll tell you something else, no lawyer as astute as is Mr. Rosser would refuse to let his client confront a accuser like that if he knew in his heart that his client was innocent.

SOLICITOR HUGH M. DORSEY

WINS BIG CASE

"If a negro ever accuses me, I tell you that I will confront him and there's no lawyer can stop me, and even if I would wait for my lawyer's return, I would confront my accused as soon as he did get back.

Rosser Again Interrupts.

"You say you never knew until you came to court what Conley had sworn against you," continued the solicitor turning to Frank, "but you could have known if you had wanted to confront your accuser."

Mr. Rosser entered an objection here, making the statement that Conley made so many affidavits that Frank would not have known the one he would swear in the courtroom, even if he had talked to him.

"Oh, well," retorted Mr. Dorsey, "you can object all you want to, but I am going to put it up to the jury and they can decide about it. You can object all you want to."

"He's outside the rule, your honor," shouted Mr. Rosser.

"I'm not outside the rule and they the defense] see the force they think they can make by such objections."

"Well, that's out of order," retorted Mr. Rosser.

"Well, if they (counting to the defense) think it's out of order, I'll all, they (pointing to the jury) don't."

"Well, now, your honor, I submit he's out of order and he ought to be ruled out," said Mr. Rosser.

Judge Roan allowed the solicitor to go on.

"This man, Frank, a white man, a graduate of Cornell, a man of brilliant mind and of refined feeling on the one hand, pretends that his counsel was out of town, refused to meet Conley and when his counsel came back he would not allow it.

"Frank tells you in regard to that visit that Conley made to the jail with the police when Conley wanted to confront him that his counsel was out of town, because he wanted first to get permission of his attorney, Mr. Rosser, who was trying a case at Tallulah Falls that day, and he says that if he could have got Mr. Rosser's permission that he would have seen Conley or anybody else that day, but I tell you, gentlemen, that Mr. Rosser got back from Tallulah in a few hours, and yet Frank never did see Conley.

"I tell you, gentlemen of the jury, that if you have got sense enough to get out of a shower of rain, you know that never before in the history of the Anglo-Saxon race and never in the history of the African race in this country, did a negro accuse a white man and that white man, with Anglo-Saxon blood in his veins and claiming innocence, refuse to face his accuser.

"I'll tell you something else, no lawyer as astute as is Mr. Rosser would refuse to let his client confront a accuser like that if he knew in his heart that his client was innocent.

"If a negro ever accuses me, I tell you that I will confront him and there's no lawyer can stop me, and even if I would wait for my lawyer's return, I would confront my accused as soon as he did get back.

Rosser Again Interrupts.

"You say you never knew until you came to court what Conley had sworn against you," continued the solicitor turning to Frank, "but you could have known if you had wanted to confront your accuser."

Mr. Rosser entered an objection here, making the statement that Conley made so many affidavits that Frank would not have known the one he would swear in the courtroom, even if he had talked to him.

"Oh, well," retorted Mr. Dorsey, "you can object all you want to, but I am going to put it up to the jury and they can decide about it. You can object all you want to."

"He's outside the rule, your honor," shouted Mr. Rosser.

"I'm not outside the rule and they the defense] see the force they think they can make by such objections."

"Well, that's out of order," retorted Mr. Rosser.

"Well, if they (counting to the defense) think it's out of order, I'll all, they (pointing to the jury) don't."

"Well, now, your honor, I submit he's out of order and he ought to be ruled out," said Mr. Rosser.

Judge Roan allowed the solicitor to go on.

"This man, Frank, a white man, a graduate of Cornell, a man of brilliant mind and of refined feeling on the one hand, pretends that his counsel was out of town, refused to meet Conley and when his counsel came back he would not allow it.

"Frank tells you in regard to that visit that Conley made to the jail with the police when Conley wanted to confront him that his counsel was out of town

Leo Frank Received Fair Trial Declares Chief Newport Lanford

"It is very gratifying to the members of my department that the jury after their undoubtedly careful deliberation, found Frank guilty. I am not in the least surprised nor do I think are any of the detectives who have been associated with me in this case.

"Frank was given one of the fairest trials it has ever been my lot to figure in. A body of twelve honorable gentlemen of high standing in the community have found him guilty, as charged, of the murder of Mary Phagan, and I am of the opinion that nearly everyone who is familiar with the case believes him guilty.

"We, the other detectives and myself, have worked very hard on the case and have been untiring in our efforts to get at the truth regarding this terrible crime. We have been severely condemned by a few persons, most of whom are unfamiliar with the case, and with police methods of obtaining evidence, for the manner in which the city detectives have handled the Frank case, but the verdict rendered by the jury comes as a complete vindication of our department, in my opinion, and we feel that we have received the greatest reward possible, namely, the conviction of the man responsible for the little Phagan girl's death."

Rabbi David Marx Expresses Great Surprise Over Verdict

Rabbi David Marx, close personal friend of Leo M. Frank, who has stood by the convicted young man with a devotion which has been the admiration of even those who thought Frank guilty, was one of those most surprised at the verdict—surprised and stunned. Dr. Marx had been granted a leave of absence by his congregation, and had been intending to take a trip to Europe.

When Frank was arrested Dr. Marx gladly gave up the idea of a vacation and not a day has passed that he was not been with the unfortunate young man. When he learned the verdict Monday he said:

"I am stunned. I cannot believe it. I know he is innocent—I know he is incapable of such a crime. My faith in Leo Frank has not diminished one bit.

"I ask that the public suspend final judgment until an appeal for a new trial is made."

Dr. Marx was with Frank when the news of the jury's finding was made known.

Later he consulted with Frank's attorneys and then went back to the jail to lend what comfort he could to the young man.

Phones Kept Busy for Hours With Messages About Verdict

According to a statement made by an official of the company Monday night never in the history of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, have as many calls been registered as were put into the local exchanges within the first hour after the Frank jury brought in a verdict.

The company had a full and competent corps of operators at the switchboards, but the calls came in too fast and frequently to be handled promptly. The officials state that it appeared that every man, woman and child in Atlanta wanted to make use of the phone immediately and talk with their friends about the trial and its outcome. The company has a rush hour every day, in which the operators are taxed to their utmost speed to handle the calls, but Monday afternoon broke all records, more than three times the number of connections being called for than the largest number of any previous day in the history of the company in Atlanta.

AS BELLS TOLLED DORSEY CLOSED SPEECH

"I have heard Conley's whole statement, and I say the jury has heard that every time it was put to him he used the word 'saw' instead of 'did.' I want to see the physiognomy of the man who took those notes. I also want his original notes."

Judge Hawes, for the expert stenographic, who had taken most of Conley's statement, stated that the charge would be no different from "done," that it would have been impossible for the stenographer to have made a mistake.

"Very well, then," said the solicitor, "you have said in your own argument Mr. Rosser that one thing a negro would do under any circumstances would be to absorb the words and expressions of a white man.

"Then Conley is sustained by Frank's statement relating to his relatives in Brooklyn.

"When Jim was on the stand, Rosser questioned him about Mincey. Where is this Mincey? Echo answers 'Where.' These men know his purpose, lying was so diabolical it would have sickened the jury until the absence of Mincey is a powerful support of Jim Conley's story.

"Every circumstance in this case proves that his man killed this girl. Extraordinary. Yes. But as true as the fact that Mary Phagan is dead.

"She died a brute death. Without a splotch of blemish upon her, a matter to the virtue she protected to the extent of death in saving it from her employer.

"Your honor, I have done my duty. I have no apologies to make. That will be but the verdict, guilty, guilty, guilty."

There was a melodious blast of noon whistles. The courtroom was still. The whistles rang out over a working city at the exact hour Mary Phagan several weeks ago stepped into the pencil factory to her death. The solicitor's speech was done.

WEALTHY MAN IS SHOT LOOKING FOR "PEEPER"

Dothan, Ala., August 25.—Seeing a man peeping through a knot hole in the door of her home, Mrs. Martin, a widow who rents from J. F. Register, a wealthy land owner, Saturday night late, took a pistol and shot through the hole and sent a bullet into the brain of the man on the other side of the door. The man happened to be Mr. Register, who, having heard that a young man in the neighborhood while drinking had been disturbing Mrs. Martin was making an investigation and was looking through the knot hole to see if the obnoxious man was around. Mrs. Martin with her children hurried to the home of Register and told the wife of the latter that she had shot the young man who had been bothering her. Later it was discovered she had shot Register. Mrs. Martin was lodged in jail.

Good Roads Convention.

This convention will consider trying to induce congress to extend federal aid to the good roads.

MARY PHAGAN, THE VICTIM

Story of Mary Phagan's Death As Representatives of the State Outlined It to Frank's Jury

The jury has said that Leo M. Frank is guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan.

With that verdict fell upon Frank the awful shadow of the gallows and death.

This is a fearful shadow to dwell on. It is a midnight of horror more black and dreadful than mere words can conjure up.

But there is another shadow which hovers over Leo M. Frank—a shadow beside whose unspeakable blackness the thought of mere death brightens to the soft roseate glow of a sweet and soul-resting twilight.

Good Name Jeopardized.

This other shadow is the great black blot of the crime that must besmirch the good name of Leo M. Frank so long as the name shall exist and people shall be able to remember.

By its verdict the jury drew the great black smudge across his name. Whether, if the world knew what I do M. Frank knows, it would still be so is another question. If unwittingly the jury has made so great a blunder, and the more horrible is it to consider the smirch upon the name of an innocent man.

But, true or untrue, the jury's verdict has cast the shadow on Frank's name, and this is the shadow as outlined in the prosecution's argument.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil company's factory, on Forsyth street, sat alone in his office on the second floor of the pencil factory at noon on Saturday, April 26, and awaited the coming of little Mary Phagan to draw the $1.20 wages that was due her. She was pretty and sweet and young, and Leo Frank had designs upon her. He was expecting her arrival and had arranged to execute these evil designs.

On the floor below lurked his dusky accomplice, Jim Conley, with whom he had arranged to watch for him while he received "a young lady in his office."

Mary Phagan Arrives.

A few minutes after 12 o'clock little Mary arrived and went to Frank's office and asked for her pay, which the superintendent gave her.

Then for some purpose Mary Phagan walked back to the metal room on the second floor and Frank, intent upon fulfilling his desire, followed her on tiptoe.

Frank approached the girl and made advances upon her. She was young and innocent. She resisted him. Frank was displeased and struck her a blow in the eye. The girl fell and struck her head, cutting a great gash in the back of it.

Conley heard her scream.

What Should Frank Do?

The girl lay upon the floor. What should Frank do? In desperation he asked himself the question. If she recovers she will tell and I will be ruined. She must not live.

The decision was quickly made. He tied a cord around her neck and strangled the life from her body.

Monteen Stover had come to Frank's office for her pay. That was a narrow escape, but she was gone now and he was safe.

Conley heard Frank's steps as he ran to the head of the stairs and called him.

He went to Frank's assistance.

In terror Frank said:

"There's a girl back there I hit accidentally."

And Jim Conley went back and found Mary Phagan dead.

Frank's next step, according to the state, was to hide the body.

And so he told Conley to wrap it up in a piece of cloth and take it to the basement.

Just as he would wrap up a bunch of clothes, Conley bundled the body of little Mary Phagan into the cloth, and after two efforts got his grewsome burden on his shoulder. With half his journey to the elevator done, he dropped his burden and mopped his brow.

"Mr. Frank," he said, "she's too heavy, you'll have to help me."

Every minute was precious and Frank cursed and swore, but he took her feet and Jim took her head and the horrible journey to the elevator began once more.

The motor to the elevator was off and the switch locked up, so Frank hurried for the key and unlocked it.

Leave Body in Basement.

Together they put the body in the elevator and carried it to the basement, Frank standing astride his victim.

In the basement they left her and the pair went back to Frank's office to cover their tracks and transact certain financial ends of the bargain.

Feeling himself yet unsafe, Frank had Jim Conley to write notes tending to incriminate anyone but himself. And when he had given Jim instructions to come back that afternoon and burn the body in the furnace in the basement, he went home to lunch.

He came back after lunch to see that Conley burned the body. But his henchman was asleep and could not wake up.

Newt Lee, the watchman, arrived at 4 o'clock and Frank sent him away for two hours with the hope that Conley would yet come and together they might burn the body and destroy all traces of their crime.

But Jim never came and it remained for Frank for the rest of his life to cover the crime and divert suspicion from himself elsewhere if he could.

This in brief is the plot that the jury has charged against the name of Leo M. Frank.

Innumerable Incidents.

But there are other incidents innumerable in the story of the great fight that was conducted from that day until the jury said that Frank was guilty.

There was manifold mystery and suspicion that shot in a dozen different directions.

The murder first came to light about 4 o'clock on the morning of Sunday, April 27, the day following that of the commission of the crime.

Newt Lee, the negro night watchman at the factory, on his nightly rounds, discovered the mutilated body of the girl lying face-down in a remote corner of the basement.

He notified the police and said that he attempted to notify Frank and could not.

The Constitution carried exclusive news of the murder, and first told the world of one of the most horrible atrocities in the history of crime.

Newt Lee was placed under arrest and rushed to police station. There was an insignificant attempt to take him from the automobile in which he was being carried, but it resulted in naught.

Goes to Undertaker's.

Leo Frank was taken to the undertaker's to see the body of the girl and identify it.

He was also taken to police station to assist in solving the mystery.

For days Newt Lee was grilled by the detectives, but without gaining any more information than he gave the police on the night he notified them of his grewsome find.

Arthur Mullinax was said to have been seen with the girl on the night of the murder, and was arrested. He told a straight tale and was able to substantiate it and gain his release.

By his time John Black, of the police detective force, was beginning to formulate a theory of his own about the murder. He conferred with his chief, and Frank was brought to the police station once more. Frank gave an account of his actions on the day of the murder.

When Frank left the station house that day, which was the Monday following the murder, he hired the Pinkertons to assist in the search for the murderer.

The same afternoon J. M. Gantt, a former employee of the factory, who had been seen at the factory on the Saturday of the killing, was arrested in Marietta, apparently fleeing from the scene of the crime, and was brought to police headquarters. Gantt was questioned, but was able to establish his innocence and after a short-lived imprisonment was released.

Frank Charged With Murder.

The next day Frank was brought once more to the station house, this time charged with the murder.

Attorneys Luther Rosser and Herbert Haas were engaged to defend him.

At the coroner's inquest Frank was forced to give a detailed account of his whereabouts and actions on the day of the murder. At the inquest a number of girls, some of whom gave him none too savory a name, were called upon to testify.

The coroner ordered him held for the grand jury.

While washing a shirt at the factory in order to appear more respectable at the grand jury hearing, where he had been called as a witness, Jim Conley, the negro sweeper, was arrested.

No Attention to Conley.

No particular attention was paid to Conley at the time. But on the day that Frank was indicted for the murder Conley confessed to the authorship of the murder notes, and accused Frank of having dictated them.

After that a number of very startling statements came from Conley. All of these he denounced as willful lies when he made the final statement in which he confessed himself accessory after the fact in help Frank to dispose of the body.

After having been postponed from its first date, May 30, the trial of Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, came to court July 28. Judge Roan, one of the best known judges in criminal cases in the state, was upon the bench. Hugh Dorsey, solicitor general, who had represented the state in other famous cases, notably the Daisy Grace and the Callie Applebaum cases, was the prosecuting attorney. Luther Rosser, whose fame as a criminal lawyer was widely abroad in the land already, was augmented by Reuben Arnold, another brilliant legal light.

Jury Quickly Chosen.

Under the direction of these able men the case proceeded. The jury was chosen with incredibly short time.

The story of how the prosecution built up a formidable chain of circumstantial evidence is history.

According to the solicitor's witnesses, Frank was the last man seen by the victim. He had refused to give Mary Phagan's pay to a girl chum for her on the day previous, showing, claimed Dorsey, that he was planning to meet the girl on the next day.

Jim Conley testified that he had watched for Frank on the day of the murder, as upon other occasions, while he consorted with women and girl in his office. He testified that he had heard footsteps leaving Frank's office and had later heard the girl scream. He testified that he had helped Frank carry the body to the basement, had written the note at Frank's dictation, and had promised to meet Frank in the afternoon and burn the body.

For days Rosser and Arnold strove to break down the negro's story, but were unable to do it.

Frank's character was placed in issue, and the prosecution produced witnesses and even were able to make some of the witnesses of the defense to testify that Frank's character was bad.

Frank's Dramatic Statement.

The last and most dramatic of the testimony was that Leo M. Frank himself, who went upon the stand and told the story of his life, accounting for his time on the day of the murder in most minute manner.

Again and again had the press urged Frank to make some sort of a statement to the public, but not once did a message come from his cell down in the Tower. When he finished his statement it was with these words:

"They have called me the silent man. Now I speak. This is the place. I have told the truth and the whole truth."

Then came the brilliant battle of the wits and oratory of the lawyers. It was a long and hard-fought battle. The faces of the jury were inscrutable, and no one could say what they would do.

The sentiment of the courtroom habitues was plainly in favor of the prosecution. Dorsey was repeatedly cheered in the streets, and once in the courtroom itself.

Verdict Quickly Reached.

The case was closed Monday and went to the jury. In a few hours the jury had made up their minds that Frank was the guilty man and so turned in their verdict.

There are but two courses that Frank may now pursue to regain his life and freedom, and these may do nothing more than to postpone the effect of the verdict of the present jury. Frank will seek a new trial, and in case this is not granted may appeal to the higher court. Should the higher court grant this new trial he has one more chance; should it not, he must die unless the governor should see fit to interfere.

Frank Waits With Wife in Tower For News From the Courthouse

trial on statutory grounds, and prior to the making of this motion sentence will be passed.

Judge Roan stated that he would not pronounce sentence until public feeling was more calm.

While the jury was out nearly four hours and each and every member was pledged to secrecy, it is definitely known that only one ballot was taken and that the verdict was reached in a comparatively short time.

BIG CROWD ON STREETS WAITS FOR THE VERDICT.

When the crowd that filled the courtroom was driven out Monday afternoon on the order of Judge Roan it flowed to the streets to await the verdict, increasing in size as the minutes passed.

A veritable honeycomb of humanity spread over the section from Whitehall to Central avenue, on Hunter street, and from Alabama to Mitchell on Pryor. Men and women clung to the walls of buildings and sat in doorways.

Windows were crowded with women and girls and children. It was as though a street audience had gathered to watch an eventful procession. The shrill orders of the mounted policemen arose over the hum of the crowd.

A knot of men clustered around the pressroom, the windows of which front Hunter street, just opposite the new courthouse building. As the reporters at the telephone shouted the verdict to their offices, the word came through the windows. It was received with a shout.

The cry of guilty took winged flight from lip to lip. It traveled like the rattle of musketry. Then came a combined shout that rose to the sky. Pandemonium reigned. Hats went into the air. Women wept and shouted by turns.

GREAT OVATION ACCORDED SOLICITOR GENERAL DORSEY.

As Solicitor Dorsey appeared in the doorway of the courthouse while the crowd yelled its reception of the Frank verdict, there came a mighty roar.

As expressed by one aged man, whose wrinkled face and empty sleeve proclaimed service in the days of civil strife, and who had stood in the mob to hear the verdict, "it was like the 'Dixie' rising out in a place where you ain't known."

The solicitor reached no further than the sidewalk. While mounted men rode like Cossacks through the human swarm, three muscular men slung Mr. Dorsey on their shoulders and passed him over the heads of the crowd across the street to his office.

With hat raised and tears coursing down his cheeks, the victor in Georgia's most noted criminal battle was tumbled over a shrieking throng that wildly proclaimed its admiration. Few will live to see another such demonstration.

Mr. Dorsey was carried in the elevator to his office, where he dropped limply in a seat, exhausted, worn completely out by strain and exertion. Friends besieged him. The stairway leading to the floor on which his office is situated was lined with men and women.

A Constitution reporter asked a statement. .

"I feel sorry for his wife and mother," were his only words. He had nothing to say about the outcome, about the bitter fight that had been waged, nothing about the prospects of a new trial. His sympathy was for the two women who had been dealt a blow as mortal as the courts had dealt their son and husband.

MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL WILL BE MADE VERY SOON.

It will probably be tomorrow—at the earliest—before sentence is passed upon Leo Frank. Judge Roan stated last night that he would give time for feeling to diminish before calling the convicted man to court.

That the defense will make immediate appeal for new trial was stated by Attorney Luther Z. Rosser to a Constitution reporter last night. He would make no other statement regarding the verdict. Statutory grounds will be the basis for the plea. Excerpts from the evidence and decisions of Judge Roan, stated the attorney, would be the grounds.

Judge Roan will be notified of this appeal this morning. It will be promptly carried before the supreme court for consideration. It is legal for Judge Roan to grant the new trial, it is said, however, that the request will not be made of his court.

Attorney Frank Hooper, colleague of the solicitor in Frank's prosecution, declared Monday afternoon that he did not believe that the supreme court would either grant a new trial or reverse the jury's verdict. It has been a fair and impartial trial, he declared, and there will be no substantial grounds on which to base such a plea.

Solicitor Dorsey would not commit himself. Both Mr. Rosser and Mr. Arnold, however, seemed confident that the supreme court would act favorably upon their plea.

The sentence will be imposed in the same courtroom in which the case was tried.

Judge Roan's Charge to Jury; Deals With Reasonable Doubt

"Gentlemen of the Jury—This bill of indictment charges Leo M. Frank with the offense of murder. The charge is that Leo M. Frank, in this county, on the 26th day of April of this year, with force and arms, did unlawfully and with malice aforethought kill and murder one Mary Phagan by then and there choking her, the said Mary Phagan, with a cord placed around her neck.

"To this charge made by the bill of indictment found by the grand jury of this county recently impaneled Leo M. Frank, the defendant, files a plea of not guilty. The charge as made by the bill of indictment on the one hand and his plea of not guilty filed thereto form the issue, and you, gentlemen of the jury, have been selected, chosen and sworn to try the truth of this issue.

"Leo M. Frank, the defendant, commences the trial of this issue with the presumption of innocence in his favor, and this presumption of innocence remains with him, to shield him and protect him, until the state shall—overcome it and remove it by evidence offered to you in your hearing and presence, sufficient in its strength and character to satisfy your minds beyond a reasonable doubt of his guilt of each and every material allegation made by the bill of indictment.

"I charge you, gentlemen, that all of the allegations of the indictment are material, and it is necessary for the state to satisfy you of their truth by evidence that convinces your minds beyond a reasonable doubt of his guilt before you would be authorized to find a verdict of guilty.

Charges on Reasonable Doubt.

"You are not compelled to find, from the evidence, his guilt beyond any doubt, but beyond a reasonable doubt, such a doubt as grows out of the evidence in the case, or for the want of evidence such a doubt as a reasonable and impartial man would entertain about matters of the highest importance to himself after all reasonable efforts to ascertain the truth. This does not mean a fanciful doubt, one conjured up by the jury, but a reasonable doubt.

"Gentlemen, this defendant is charged with murder. Murder is defined to be the unlawful killing of a human being, in the peace of the state, by a person of sound memory and discretion, with malice aforethought, either express or implied.

"Express malice is that deliberate intention unlawfully to take away the life of a fellow-creature which is manifested by external circumstances capable of proof.

"Malice shall be implied where no considerable provocation appears, and where all of the circumstances of the killing show an abandoned and malignant heart.

"There is no difference between express and implied malice except in the mode of arriving at the fact of its existence. The legal sense of the term 'malice' is not confined to particular animosity to the deceased, but extends to an evil design in general. The popular idea of malice in its sense of revenge hatred, ill-will, has nothing to do with the subject. It is an intent to kill a human being in a case where the law would neither justify nor in any degree excuse the intention if the killing should take place as intended. It is a deliberate intent unlawfully to take human life, whether it springs from hatred, ill-will or revenge, ambition, avarice or other like passion. A man may form the intent to kill, do the killing instantly, and regret the deed as soon as done. Malice must exist at the time of the killing. It need not have existed any length of time previously.

Law Presumes Malice.

"When a homicide is proven, if it is proven to be the act of the defendant, the law presumes malice, and unless the evidence should relieve the slayer he may be found guilty of murder. The presumption of innocence is removed by proof of the killing by the defendant. When the killing is shown to be the act of the defendant, it is then on the defendant to justify or mitigate the homicide. The proof to do that may come from either side, either from the evidence offered by the state to make out its case, or from the evidence offered by the defendant or the defendant's statement.

"Gentlemen of the jury, you are made by law the sole judges of the credibility of the witnesses and the weight of the testimony of each and every witness. It is for you to take this testimony as you have heard it, in connection with the defendant's statement, and arrive at what you believe to be the truth.

"Gentlemen, the object of all legal investigation is the discovery of truth. That is the reason of you being selected, impanaled and sworn in this case—to discover and ascertain from this issue formed on this bill of indictment. Is Leo M. Frank guilty? Are you satisfied of that beyond a reasonable doubt from the evidence in this case? Or is his plea of not guilty the truth? The rules of evidence are framed with a view to this prominent end—seeking always for pure sources and the highest evidence.

"Direct evidence is that which immediately points to the question at issue. Indirect or circumstantial evidence is that which only tends to establish the issue by proof of various facts sustaining by their consistency the hypothesis claimed. To warrant a conviction on circumstantial evidence the proven facts must not only be consistent with the hypothesis of guilt, but must exclude every other reasonable doubt hypothesis save that of the guilt of the accused.

Character Evidence.

"The defendant has introduced testimony as to his good character. On this subject I charge you that evidence of good character when offered by the defendant in a criminal case is always relevant and material, and should be considered by the jury, along with all the other evidence introduced, as one of the facts of the case. It should be considered by the jury, not merely where the balance of the testimony in the case makes it doubtful whether the defendant is guilty or not, but also where such evidence of good character may of itself generate a doubt as to the defendant's guilt. Good character is a substantial fact, like any other fact tending to establish the defendant's innocence, and ought to be so regarded by the jury.

"Like all other facts proved in the case, it should be weighed and estimated by the jury, for it may remove that doubtful which otherwise would be clear. However, if the guilt of the accused is plainly proved to the satisfaction of the jury beyond a reasonable doubt, notwithstanding the proof of good character, it is their duty to convict. But the jury may consider the good character of the defendant, whether the rest of the testimony leaves the question of his guilt doubtful or not, and if a consideration of the proof of his good character, considered along with the evidence, creates a reasonable doubt in the minds of the jury as to the defendant's guilt, then it would be the duty of the jury to give the defendant the benefit of the doubt thus raised by his good character, and to acquit him.

"The word 'character,' as used in this connection, means that general reputation which he bore among the people who knew him prior to the time of the death of Mary Phagan. Therefore, when the witnesses by which a defendant seeks to prove his good character are put upon the stand and testify that his character is good, the effect of the testimony is to say that the people who knew him spoke well of him, and that his general reputation was otherwise good.

Allowed Character Attack.

"When a defendant has put his character in issue, the state is allowed to attack it by proving that his general reputation is not good, or by showing that the witnesses who have stated that his character is good have unfairly reported it. Hence the solicitor general has been allowed to cross-examine the witnesses for the defense who were introduced to testify to his good character. In the cross-examination of these witnesses he was allowed to ask them if they had not heard of various acts of misconduct on the defendant's part.

"The solicitor general had this right to ask any questions along this line he pleased, in order thoroughly to sift the witnesses, and to see if anything derogatory to the defendant's reputation could be proved by them.

"The court now wishes to say to you that, although the solicitor general was allowed to ask the defendant's character witnesses these questions as to their having heard of various acts of alleged misconduct on the defendant's part, the jury is not to consider this as evidence that the defendant has been guilty of any such misconduct as may have been indicated in the questions of the solicitor general, or any of them, unless the alleged witnesses testify to it.

"Furthermore, where a man's character is put in evidence, and in the course of the investigation any specific act of misconduct is shown, this does not go before the jury for the purpose of showing affirmatively that his character is bad or that he is guilty of the offense with which he stands charged, but is to be considered by the jury only in determining the credibility and the degree of information possessed by those witnesses who have testified to his good character.

"When the defendant has put his character in issue, the state is allowed to bring witnesses to prove that his general character is bad, and thereby to disprove the testimony of those who have stated that it is good. The jury is allowed to take this testimony, and have the right to consider it along with all the other evidence introduced on the subject of the general character of the defendant, and it is for the jury finally to determine from all the evidence whether his character was good or bad.

Good Character.

"You will, therefore, observe that this is the rule you will be guided by in determining the effect to be given to the evidence on the subject of the defendant's character: If after considering all the evidence pro and con, on the subject of the defendant's character, you believe that prior to the time of Mary Phagan's death he bore a good reputation among those who knew him, that his general character was good, you will consider that as one of the facts in the case, and it may be sufficient to create a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt, if it so impress your minds and conscience, after considering it along with all the other evidence in the case, and if it does, you should give the defendant the benefit of the doubt and acquit him.

"However, though you should believe his general character was good, still if, after giving due weight to it as one of the facts in the case, you believe from the evidence as a whole that he is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, you should be authorized to convict him.

"If you believe beyond a reasonable doubt from the evidence in this case that this defendant is guilty of murder, then you would be authorized in that event to say 'We, the jury, find the defendant guilty.'

"Should you go no further, gentlemen, and say nothing else in your verdict, the court would have to sentence the defendant to the extreme penalty for murder, to-wit: to be hanged by the neck until he is dead. But should you see fit to do so, in the event you arrive at the conclusion and belief beyond a reasonable doubt from the evidence that this defendant is guilty, then, gentlemen, you would be authorized in that event, if you saw fit to do so, to say: 'We, the jury, find the defendant guilty, and we recommend that he be imprisoned in the penitentiary for life.'

"In the event you should make such a verdict as that, then the court, under the law, would have to sentence the defendant to the penitentiary for life.

"You have heard the defendant make his statement. He had the right to make it under the law. It is not made under oath and he is not subject to examination or cross-examination. It is with you as to how much of it you will believe, or how little of it. You may go to the extent, if you see fit, of disregarding it in reference to the sworn testimony in the case.

"In the event, gentlemen, you have a reasonable doubt from the evidence, or the evidence and the statement together, or either, as to the defendant's guilt as charged, then give the prisoner the benefit of that doubt and acquit him; and in the event you do acquit him the form of your verdict would be: 'We, the jury, find defendant not guilty.' As honest jurors do your utmost to reach the truth from the evidence and statement as you have heard it here, then let your verdict speak it."

PRAISES JURY

RIFLE CHAMPIONSHIP CAPTURED BY SWEETING

Camp Perry, Ohio, August 25.—Artificer W. E. Sweeting of Pennsylvania, is the champion individual rifleman of the United States, having won the national individual championship match on the range here today by a score of 238 out of a possible 250. Lieutenant L. W. Water, of the marine corps, was second with 236, Artificer Mundel, of Washington, third with 234, Sergeant Garland, of Indiana, fourth with 234, Captain Belles, of Washington, fifth with 234.

In this match twelve gold medals will be awarded and $300 divided.

At the meeting of the National Rifle association this evening a board of twelve directors was elected and General Evans presented the prizes and medals won in the matches last week.

But the notification committee never meets with a rebuff.

Applause for Solicitor Argued As Grounds for a Mistrial; Motion of Defense Is Denied

Following the conclusion of the solicitor's argument, Rube Arnold arose to make a motion for mistrial on the grounds of demonstrations for the past three days on the part of crowds that have swarmed to the trial.

"We propose to prove every fact," he stated. "It will be remembered that counsel for the defense requested before the case began that the courtroom be cleared.

"When the court allowed the evidence pertaining to Frank's relations to women there was a wave of applause in the courtroom. On Friday, when the jury was barely a block away, the crowd in front of the courthouse yelled 'Hurrah for Dorsey!'

"It was the same on Saturday, only this time the jury was in a cafe less than a block distant, and with p easy hearing distance.

Cheered the Solicitor.

"On the last day of the trial, a large crowd, including many women, was in the courtroom. Upon the appearance of the solicitor, the crowd applauded loudly.

"These facts intend to coerce and influence a jury. If your honor does not take cognizance of the facts, we will prove them. Frank has had no fair trial. I have never seen a case so hedged-in by manifestations of public sentiment."

The solicitor said:

"It would be ridiculous to entertain such a motion. You may call the jury, your honor, and, as has been done before, caution them that such demonstrations should not be considered.

"I want to get this business in the record so as to show what kind of a trial we have had," said Mr. Arnold.

"I heard the applause this morning," said Judge Roan, "but I don't know what the jury heard."

While the jury was in its ante room, having been sent there for this especial purpose, R. V. Beavers, a deputy in charge of the jury, was called to testify.

He was examined directly by Mr. Arnold.

"Were you in charge of the jury on last Friday?" was asked.

Heard the Applause.

"No, I was in charge of them Saturday," was the answer.

"Where was the jury when the applause began?"

"Almost all the German cafe."

"Did you hear them yell 'hurrah for Dorsey?'"

"No, we only heard the applause."

"Did you hear while in the cafe the applause for Dorsey?"

"No."

Hooper on cross-examination.

"You didn't hear a word said—only applause?"

"That was all!"

Attorney Arnold was then sworn in and put on the stand. His statement was:

"I wish to state that on Friday, as Solicitor Dorsey left the courtroom, I heard loud cheering. The next day, I asked Mr. Dorsey to remain in the courtroom until the jury had got out of hearing. As he left this time, there was another ovation and cheers and hurrahs for Dorsey. As he went into the Kiser building, he was believed by admirers and applause."

Cross-examination by Hooper.

"Do you know where the jury went Saturday?"

"Only from what Deavers told me."

"You did not hear the name of Frank mentioned in the applause?"

"No."

Didn't Hear Applause.

Charles F. Huber, who was in charge of the jury Friday, was next put on the stand. He was questioned by Arnold.

"Where had the jury reached when the applause began?" he was asked.

"I did not know there had been any applause until the next day," was his answer.

At this answer there was a wave of applause that swept over the courtroom. Mr. Arnold asked that this incident also be added to the others in his motion.

After the solicitor had instructed the judge to consider a demurrer and traverse to the move of the defense, the defense was overruled.

"Glad and Relieved Trial Is Over; No Doubt of Leo Frank's Guilt

—Mrs. J. W. Coleman

"I could not begin to tell you how glad and relieved I feel, now that it is all over," said Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of Mary Phagan, talking to a Constitution reporter last night.

"For weeks I have felt that I just could not sleep another wink for thinking of that man Frank, and the possibility that he might escape the consequences of his crime. I have felt satisfied all the time that he was guilty, and the verdict of the jury is no surprise to me. They are good, noble men, and should be commended by all for doing their duty as they have done. I do not see how anyone who has read all the evidence could possibly think there is the smallest doubt as to Frank's guilt.

"I have not been well for the last week, and my mother also has been sick, so you see I could not attend all the sessions of the court, but I have gone as often as possible, and I have read every line regarding the progress of the trial published in the papers. I hope that they will not be hard on that Conley negro. Although he lied a great deal at first, he did turn round and tell the whole truth at last, and in my opinion, he should be let off with a light sentence.

"The only real regret I feel about the entire trial is that I was unable to attend court this afternoon, and shake hands with each member of the jury and with Judge Roan. I will take the first opportunity of seeing every one of them and thanking them for the patient, careful consideration they have shown to everything connected with the trial and way."

Why is the soda cracker today such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package. Five cents.

THOROUGH PROBE OF JUDGE SPEER

House to Order Searching Investigation of the Charges Against Georgian—Witnesses to Be Summoned.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, August 25.—(special.) Representative Henry D. Clayton, chairman of the house judiciary committee, will tomorrow introduce a resolution agreed upon by the committee today, authorizing a full investigation into the charges against Judge Emory Speer, of the southern district of Georgia.

The resolution recites the charges laid before the committee on August 16, 1913, by the atorney general, and continues:

"Whereas, the charges embodied in such report are supported by exhibits and affidavits, and are of such a grave nature as to warrant further investigation; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the committee on the judiciary be, and is hereby authorized, to inquire into and concerning the official conduct of Judge Emory Speer, now judge for the southern district of Georgia, touching his conduct in regard to the matters set forth in such report, and to inquire whether said judge has been guilty of any misbehavior for which he should be impeached; and to report to the house of representatives the conclusions of the committee in respect thereto, with appropriate recommendations."

Witnesses to Be Called.

Tomorrow Chairman Clayton will introduce a resolution asking the house to empower the committee to investigate the charges and compel the attendance of witnesses. The committee will report to the house its conclusions and recommendations. Such a course, unanimously agreed upon by the committee, follows precedents in the impeachment cases of Swayne, Hanford, Archbald and others.

The investigation probably will be made chiefly through a sub-committee. Witnesses to be summoned will be determined upon later. Judge Speer already has asked the committee to allow him to be present at the hearings and requested that, if possible, he might appear after a time when he is subject to hay fever. Judge Speer said his physician advised him that it would be dangerous for him to come to Washington before. The committee in al probability will accede to this request.

Judge Speer has acquainted the committee with the line of his defense, denying the charges and attacking their authorship. Others in Georgia, including many attorneys, have telegraphed to Chairman Clayton and to members of the Georgia delegation for and against the investigation.

Bartlett Studies the Report.

Meantime Representative Bartlett, of Georgia, acting as the dean of the Georgia delegation and its committee of one to review the secret charges and report to the delegation his conclusions with a view to their course of action, if any, is considering the matter. He has looked into the report but his work of examination of the papers was interrupted today by the judiciary committee's consideration of the case. He expects to report to the delegation on his examination of the papers this week.

Huff Has More Charges.

The committee, after holding that the papers made charges sufficiently grave to win further investigation, adjourned today subject to the call of the chairman.

Colonel W. A. Huff, of Macon, who made the original charge that led to the investigation of Judge Speer, has wired Representative Hughes, of Georgia, today asking him to secure permission for him to appear and supply additional information, if that gathered by the department of justice is not sufficient.

Mr. Huff claimed that his estate was worth $100,000 and has been kept in Judge Speer's court by bankruptcy proceedings for fourteen years.

Money to Move Crops.

St. Louis, August 25.—Representatives of the St. Louis Clearing House association and of the United States treasury today approved approximately $1,000,000 worth of securities which are to be deposited with the treasury department in return for $1,000,000 in emergency currency to be placed in national banks throughout the west and south to meet the crop-moving stringency.

LEARN HOW TO FIGHT, AND THEN BE PEACEFUL

So Says Roosevelt, Returning From Stay Among Indians. Politics Discussed.

Chicago, August 25.—Tanned almost as brown as the desert Indians among whom he has been sojourning, Theodore Roosevelt stopped in Chicago today on his way home. He had enjoyed his vacation, he said, and had profited by studies of Indian character and customs.

The colonel was a guest at a buffet luncheon where he met several suffragettes. One of these, Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, informed Mr. Roosevelt she was the mother of four sons, and the colonel told her:

"I brought up my sons to fight; after you have learned to fight you can be as peaceful as you like."

The colonel added he thought no one was so much entitled to vote as a mother of sons and daughters.

Attended Snake Dance.

Colonel Roosevelt said he spent the first fortnight hunting in Arizona and that the party killed three mountain lions. He said he shot one and his two sons killed the others. He spent two weeks among the Navajos and concluded his visit by attending the "Snake" dance of the priests of the Hopi Indians.

He made a five-minute speech at the Progressive club.

Referring to the talk of merging the republican and progressive parties, he asserted the only possibility of such plan would be for the republicans to adopt every principle of the progressives.

"There would be no woman suffrage in Illinois today if it had not been for the work done by the progressive party last year," said he. "Never in the history of the country had a political party accomplished what the progressive party has in its brief history.

Woman's Duty as Voter.

"In regard to woman suffrage, I always insisted that woman's duty as a voter would not interfere with her domestic duties anymore than it does with a man's business.

"There has been a great deal of talk about political parties getting together. They can get together any time they wish by joining us. But they must adopt all of our principles, even the judiciary plank in our platform. It has been said that I have condemned judges. I never have done anything of the kind. I never used anything like the language which Abraham Lincoln used in criticising the United States supreme court. I believe judges are a high class of public servants, but I don't believe in the right of any public servant to become a public master.

"We are the only party that has adopted a rational plan for handling both little and biz business. We don't believe in strangling business.

"We believe in a policy to compel business to serve the public, not swindle it."

Mome for Ambassador Page.

London, August 25.—Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador, today secured an official home for three years by taking the lease on 4 Grosvenor square. He had inspected many residences, most of which were offered at prohibitive prices. The house is a plain but substantial dwelling in the best section of London.

THOUSANDS OF SLAVES IN THE PHILIPPINES

Children Captured and Sold. Slavery Prosecutions Have Been Blocked.

Washington, August 25.—Slavery in the full meaning of the word exists throughout the Philippines, even in the city of Manila, and peonage is general in the islands, according to a special report Commissioner Doan Worcester has made to the insular government. It has not been received here by the war department, but copies are in the hands of other officials.

Children Captured and Sold.

Filipinos in some parts of the islands commonly capture children and sell them into slavery for profit; some are sent to China where they are dressed in the native fashion.

Some children have been enticed from their homes by slave agents upon promises of scholarships in schools, and some of those in an instance which Mr. Worcester reports in detail, were sold and others were farmed out for money.

He cites the case of a 12-year-old girl, bought for some pigs, rice, chickens and a clock. The supreme court of the islands released the slave trader on the ground that no crime had been committed, because no physical force had been used. This one case, Mr. Worcester says, has blocked over 1saavery prosecutions.

Protected by Assembly.

The Philippine assembly has blocked laws for the suppression of the traffic, he says, because many of its members come from provinces where slavery flourishes. One of his reports on the traffic, he says, lies tabled in the Philippine assembly.

Mr. Worcester declares he had great difficulty in getting facts of slave cases and intimates that reports were withheld by the offices of the Philippine constabulary. He cites the case of a Philippines assemblyman caught red handed owning a slave girl in Manila and says:

"I could obtain inconclusive evidence of a hundred, a thousan1. ten thousand of them, but would multiply cases. It is simply a case of time and work."

He charges that Philippine assemblymen maintain peonage on their own farms.

DAVENPORT IS NAMED FOR AMERICUS OFFICE

McArthur for Cordele and Mary Carswell for Jeffersonville. Georgia News at Capital.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

D. F. Danvenport at Americus, A. L. McArthur at Cordele and Mary L. Carswell at Jeffersonville.

Representative Hughes has recommended the appointment of L. M. Peacock, Jr., as postmaster at Eastman. His indorsements were sent to the postoffice department today.

The postoffice department has called for the resignation of Mrs. Abbie B. Yeomans at Adrian because she had not been devoting her entire time to the affairs of her office as required under the new administration. Representative Hughes has taken the matter up and hopes to satisfy the department and have Mrs. Yeomans retained.

Hon. John T. Boifeullet, having seen the last bill passed by the Georgia legislature engrossed and signed, has returned to Washington to resume his duties as clerk of the senate foreign relations committee. Mr. Boifeullet has given up all hope of seeing Georgia again until Christmas, as he fears the present session will run into the next regular session.

Judge Newt Morris was here today on business before the postoffice department.

J. E. T. Bowden, the popular young attorney of Waycross, paid his respects to the president today. He expects to remain over to hear the president read his message on Mexico to congress tomorrow.

UNITED STATES CONSUL STABBED BY SPANIARD

Huelva, Spain, August 25.—While working at his desk today the American cousular agent at Huelva, William J. Alcock, was stabbed in the back by a madman. Mr. Alcock's assailant was a Spaniard named Bejarano, who apparently is suffering from the delusion that Americans have stolen patents of an important invention belonging to him.

The consular agent was severely wounded, but will recover. Bejarano was sent to jail.

Erie Strikers Quiet.

Erie, Pa., August 25.—Except for the presence here of state police, Erie would not have known that a strike was in progress today, so quietly did the day pass. There was no sign of disorder and no arrests were made. Eleven men arrested by the state police in Saturday's disorder were released by Mayor Stern in police court by paying small fines or on suspended sentences.

No less than a dozen persons have pledged their jewelry within two weeks, according to Mr. Perry, because relatives and friends who have been visiting them have caused grocery and butcher bills to mount so high that more money was necessary.

CONTINUOUS SENATE SESSIONS.

Today at noon in the city of Washington the senate will be called to order, will sit and talk a few hours, and will then adjourn to meet again tomorrow at noon to sit and talk a few more hours. Meanwhile business is at a standstill, waiting to see what is going to happen.

In a letter published elsewhere on this page, Edward H. Walker, a real estate dealer of this city, expresses vigorously the sentiment of business men everywhere, regardless of party affiliation.

The democrats are in the majority in the senate, and it is their duty to see to it that this tariff talkfest is brought to a close.

Nobody expects them to apply unreasonable methods to bring the debate to an end, but since it is plain that most of the talk to which the country is now being treated is for political purposes only, and that debate is being prolonged only to delay action on the tariff, it is the duty of the senate to give the speakers free rein by holding CONTINUOUS SESSIONS.

The senate has the right to adopt this order, and if it acts accordingly it will not be long before those who, at the sacrifice of business, are playing politics in the consideration of this measure, will be ready to agree to a vote. At any rate, it will expedite a vote.

By all means, therefore, let us have continuous sessions of the senate until the tariff bill is disposed of.

AN INTERESTING RESEARCH.

What no mere man would attempt the Pennsylvania railroad has undertaken to accomplish. They believe the hobble skirt is guilty of contributory negligence, and have entered the crusade against this article of woman's dress.

The Paris arbiters of fashion may not have heard of the action of the Pennsy's board of directors, but in designing all skirts, or "expose" skirts of any kind to free women's lower limbs from the hobble, the autocrats of the fashion world have the road's best wishes.

The indictment is not only against the hobble skirt, but high French heels. The road officials hold these accessory before the fact to many accidents. Conductors, trainmen and station employees are directed to note particularly the dress of women hurt in getting on and off trains and in going up and down stairways.

With the statistics thus compiled the road expects to prove its charge of contributory negligence.

NERVOUSNESS ON INCREASE.

When people are well they are not aware that they have nerves. This is true of city folk, who live at a high tension, and it is true of country folk who take things easy.

A certain degree of nervousness is a necessity. It is the high-strung, rather than the stolid, who achieve the greatest things in the arts and the sciences. There is a point, however, beyond which the nerves cannot go without breaking down. Intensification of energy finally has to give way to prostration of the nerves.

Science has not yet thrown any great light on the difference between genius and nervous disorders; nor has it fully determined the cause of nerve prostration further than to suggest that it may be due to environment. The noise of the city may drive one person to the brink of insanity, while the loneliness of the country has a similar effect upon another.

Human lives are being needlessly wasted every day in city and country, when proper attention might modify and improve conditions to the immense advantage of the human family.

In hundreds of homes in Atlanta, this very day, some one is suffering from deranged nerves. Scores of people come to the city daily, from the country, to be treated at the various hospitals and by private physicians, for disordered nerves.

What is true of Atlanta is true of other rapidly-growing cities. What is true of rural sections in Georgia is true of rural sections in other states.

What are we going to do about it?

KEEPING UP THE ROADS.

Much of the money spent on good roads is being wasted because adequate provision is not made for keeping the improved roads in repair.

This fact is brought home by a timely warning issued by the office of public roads of the United States department of agriculture. It shows that maintenance and effective repair are of equal importance with construction if the advantage of improved highways is to be enjoyed.

It is estimated that $1,000,000 a day are being spent for good roads throughout the United States. Not less than 5 per cent of this amount should be provided for upkeep and repair. Failure to provide an adequate fund for keeping the roads in condition is false economy.

More widespread interest is being taken in road improvement throughout the United States than ever before. Scientific maintenance of roads will next engage the attention of the road engineers who have concentrated their attention heretofore on the problems of construction.

Divided responsibility partly explains the reason for road deterioration, but the failure to put scientific and experienced men in general charge of the road work is at the bottom of the difficulty.

In Engand, Scotland and Wales, it is said no less than 2,140 separate authorities administer 175,487 miles of public road. While the authorities dispute, roads wear.

A skilled highway engineer should be employed by every state in the union. He should be there not only to consult, but to supervise and direct.

ATLANTA'S HOSPITALS.

The city of Atlanta may justly feel proud of her physicians: general practitioners, specialists, and surgeons, many of whom enjoy well-earned reputations that are either state-wide or national.

Atlanta may also congratulate herself on having become the hospital center of a vast section of our southeastern country. Although the city has a large number of hospitals, public and private, they are generally crowded to the limit of their capacity with patients from everywhere east of Texas and south of Baltimore.

As a general thing the hospitals of Atlanta are scientifically constructed, well equipped, and properly managed. Thou*sands of patients* who have been treated, or who have had to undergo operations, go home well, and become enthusiastic advertisers of Atlanta physicians and Atlanta nurses.

Of the city of Atlanta, itself, they usually speak in the highest terms—with a single very important exception. They say the streets around our hospitals are not properly paved to keep the noise of traffic at a minimum, and that unnecessary speed and sounds are allowed in close proximity to the hospitals.

In other cities, with hospitals such as Atlanta has, there are hospital zones, in which noisy drays are not allowed, in *which the speed of motor cars and motor*cycles regulated, and in which unnecessarily loud signals of motor and electric cars are not permitted.

The city of Atlanta has the power to create and regulate hospital zones. The city and the hospitals, working together, can properly repave the streets adjacent to the hospitals. In the interest of the city and in the interest of suffering humanity these things should be done here.

Where Thought Comes Easy.

Of the place where her latest Saturday Evening Post story, "In Search of a Husband," was written Cora Harris says, by way of introduction:

"A quiet place, where thinking is a process as Nature, no more a labor of the mind than the sprinkling of the grass was a labor of the earth in the evening and the morning of the great Second Day. That grass—it was the furniture of the soil. And this story is the Scripture of a woman's heart."

Time bestows no favors—forever on the fly,

He fades from sight,
Have to ride a lightning flash to catch him in his flight!

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON,
The Famous Prose Poet

BUYING AT HOME.

"If the people of this town would just buy everything at home," remarked the retired merchant, "it would be better for the community than all the legislation that could be framed in a thousand years. Loyalty to home industries is something we hear much about, but few people live up to it."

"I agree with you in a general way, dogone it," replied the hotelkeeper, "but there are exceptions to every rule. I just saw Kersmith driving past this hotel behind a horse he bought of old Quackenbush. Of course we should praise Kersmith for spending his money at home when he buys a horse, but if he had any sense he would go away from home, and the farther away the better. Why, he has such a commercial transaction in hand. Half the pleasure in owning a horse lies in bragging about him, telling your friends of his phenomenal bursts of speed and his human intelligence and all that sort of thing. If your horse comes from a distance you can get away with that kind of elocution, for nobody has the statistics to prove that you belong to the Ananias club.

"But there's no use of Kersmith trying anything of that sort. The minute he begins to tell what a superb creature that horse is, somebody will say: 'Oh, come off, Mr. Kersmith. I knew that horse before you were born, and believe me, if somebody left him on my doorstep in a basket I wouldn't adopt him. He is a stumpsucker and a weaver, and has a glass eye and the barber's itch, and he is spavined in three legs and the other one doesn't track right.'

"In a month from now Kersmith will realize that he knows less about his own horse than any man in town, and he'll be so discouraged he'll trade his steed for a shotgun and the next thing we know he'll be arrested for trying to blow old Quackenbush's head off. A horse is one thing that no man should buy at home, no matter how loyal to home institutions he may be.

"A horse is a good deal like a bride that way. I have always held that a man is a doggone chump if he marries a girl living in his own town. The fellow who goes to the other end of the country for a blushing bride feels like a conquering hero when he returns to his own town. Everybody is at the depot to have a squint at the heroine. Everybody is just dying to know what denomination she belongs to and whether she's an earnest worker in the federation of woman's clubs. The whole blamed town holds its breath for a month or two until the blue prints and specifications have been obtained, and the husband feels that he is the most important man in three counties.

"The old gossips can't criticise his wife, for they don't know anything about her, and the wise men in the corner drugstore, when they hold their evening consultations over local affairs, can't well insist that the bridegroom made a mistake when he married her, and it's no use predicting an early divorce, for a prophet must have a platform to stand on.

"Of course, from a commercial viewpoint we should urge young men to marry at home, for the wedding festivities call for a good deal of money, and this money goes to our local confectioners and milliners and preachers, and these people pay taxes and help to support the home government, and there are times when the most enthusiastic champions of the trade at home policy should draw the line for their own benefit.

"If a young man marries a girl who lives in his own town, everybody says that the wedding was a mistake. The two are not suited to each other in any way. The bride has an ugly temper, and her face is hand-painted, and she bought her sunny tresses at the store, and she smokes cigarettes in secret, and she doesn't know how to cook, and she drove her parents to drink, and she was expelled from the jerkwater college on the hill, and so on. How can a husband be happy when he knows the neighbors are saying such things? He can't, and he isn't, and pretty soon he loses heart and sends a rush order for a divorce to his favorite mail order house."

Boys Are Always Boys.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

That English boys of ninety years ago—there never was any doubt as to American boys of that or any other period before or after—had romantic ideas as to becoming ruthless robbers by land or pirates on the high seas is shown by a recently discovered speech made by Charles Dickens and reported in The London Times of April 13, 1864, from which the following quotation from the London Dickensonian for August is taken: "Mr. Dickens said his first recollections of the northwest of London (this was in 1824, when he was 12 years old), were connected with a certain waste plot of ground used almost exclusively for beating carpets. The only ornaments of the locality were a piece of stagnant water, a few straggling docks and some stunted greens. With it, however, was associated the romantic story of the Field of the Forty Footsteps, according to which a duel had been fought there between two brothers, the forty dreadful paces over which the victor pursued his victim being marked on the withering up of the grass in forty distinct places. Dickens had often gone there, he said, accompanied by an adventurous young Englishman, aged 11, with whom he had intended going to the Spanish Main as soon as ever they could amass sufficient wealth to buy a cutlass and a rifle."

The University of London afterward was erected on this site. Dickens as a boy in April, 1827, saw the cornerstone laid and the ceremony of laying the first stone of a new and splendid public building," of which Decimus Burton was the architect, as narrated in "Martin Chuzzlewit," was a reminiscence of this event.

Military Music.

(Berlin Correspondence of London Standard)

The method of pronouncing orders to the troops in the German army is to be entirely revolutionized. Instead of any one being fully qualified to utter commands, provided he does not suffer from a stutter or other linguistic trouble, he will now apparently have to know his scales. The kaiser has been considerably exercised in his mind because most times the orders are barbarously distorted, and many of the syllables of the words used remain in the instructor's throat. But, worst of all, each non-commissioned officer has his own way of "pitching" his orders. Some while ago, Professor Spiess was instructed by the emperor to reform all this. After working for several months and laboring over the claims of the various notes, natural and flat, the professor has finally found the note on which orders must be based—C natural. This is probably the first time that the enunciation of orders has been taken up scientifically; and there is a bad time ahead for "non-coms" who lack a musical ear.

The World's Mysteries

DID DOM PEDRO MARRY INEZ DE CASTRO?

The romance of Dom Pedro, the Infante of Portugal, and his amours with the famous beauty, Ines de Castro, sounds every note in the gamut of the narrative from the tragic to the absurd—all of them, moreover, strange sidelights upon the character not only of the royal persons involved in them but upon that of the epoch in which they happened.

There are two mysteries connected with the romantic love story of Dom Pedro and Ines. Were they really married? The infante always claimed they were, and when he came to the throne he took a horrible revenge upon the murderers of Ines. It would seem hard to doubt the young man's own statement, but then it must be remembered that he was a very stronghanded fellow and there is a possibility that he insisted that he was Ines de Castros husband to spite his father.

Why did he hate his father? In the very first place, because he compelled him to marry Donna Constance Manuel, a daughter of the Duke of Penafiel, when he was only 16 years old. Almost from the first days of this marriage Dom Pero's heart was given to Inez de Castro. And when the wife died after a marriage of but a few years, it was naturally expected that the Infante would choose another wife of royal blood. This, however, he absolutely refused to do.

When his father insisted that he should marry again there was a scene in the palace, whereupon he announced that such a thing was impossible and that he had given his hand in marriage to Inez the 14th of September, 1354. This announcement so excited those at the head of the state that a hurried council was called and it was determined that desperate measures must be taken to bring the prince to his senses.

King Alphonso pleaded with his son, he railed at him; the ministers pleaded; the prince's own friends were mobbed to pieces with him, but all in vain. He would not give up Inez de Castro and would marry no one else. Months passed, and then the king determined that the only way to end the passion was to remove the cause, and he took three courtiers into his confidence and directed them to murder Ines.

The order was obeyed in the streets of Coimbra, January 7, 1355. At the time of this crime Dom Pedro was away on his estates in the south, but as soon as he heard the news he collected his retainers and made them ready to attack his father. The interference of Castile alone prevented a rebellion, and even then Pedro agreed to a peace only on the understanding that he would never again have to speak with or even see his father.

Dom Pedro retained his enmity until the death of Alphonso "the brave," in 1537, and upon his ascending the throne his first act was to punish the murderers of Ines. One of them escaped, but two of them were put to death by slow torture.

The story of the exhuming of the corpse of Inez has often been told. It is said that to the dead body, crowned and enrobed in royal raiment, and enthroned beside the king, the assembled nobles of Portugal paid homage as to their queen, swearing fealty on the withered hand of the corpse. The gravest doubts, however, exist as to the authenticity of this story.

Ferno Lopes, the Portuguese froissart, who is the great authority for the details of the death of Inez, with some of the actors in which he was acquainted, says nothing of the ghastly ceremony, though he tells at length the tale of the funeral honors the king bestowed upon Inez de Castro.

In 1360 Pedro, either to show his undying affection for Inez, or to confirm the story of his marriage to her, had her body disinterred and conveyed to the convent of Alcobaca, where it was solemnly crowned and buried among the bodies of the royal families of Portugal. It is said that her tomb was of white marble, surmounted by her crowned statue, and on her sepulcher Pedro caused his own to be placed.

The monument, after repeatedly resisting the violence of curiosity, was broken into in 1810 by the French soldiery; the statue was mutilated, and the yellow hair was cut from the broken skeleton, to be preserved in reliquaries and blown away to the wind.

It is more than likely that Dom Pedro and Ines de Castro really were married, but historians treat the story of the nobles being compelled to pay honors to a dead queen on a throne as being entirely devoid of truth, but a romantic that has been added to an odd and romantic career otherwise.

ACT—OR QUIT!

Editor Constitution: I have lost $4,000 in real estate commissions approximately since the present congress began an effort to revise the tariff, because of the tightness of the money market resulting from tariff uncertainty, which has halted business.

My experience is the common experience of all classes of business men all over our county.

In a private conversation I asked the president of one of the largest banks in Atlanta what was his opinion as to the present condition of business. He very quickly stated that while the currency bill, now being considered, was not what he thought best as a currency improvement measure, nevertheless, said he, "I've got to the point where I don't care what they pass, just so they (congress) passes something and let us adjust business to it."

This is a country of such great commercial resources we can prosper under any kind of a tariff or currency act that is at all reasonable, if only we can know what it is; but what law we've got to be under, so we can effect an adjustment to it.

Five months of talk and uncertainty over a tariff and currency revision is bringing our great country into a condition of business uncertainty that will result in a nation-wide business panic that we cannot recover from in many years, unless congress acts, and quits its present conduct of endless talk.

The business men of our entire country have this demand to make of this present congress: Act—or quit!

And it is a plain fact also that we'll not have a business congress, acting in a business way, until we elect business men to congress in the place of lawyers and politicians seeking selfish ends.

MEDITATE.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The time and place to Mediate is at any time and in any place. Meditation is an attribute of strength and greatness. To him who knows how to Meditate there is constantly being stored in his Mind a fine wealth of power.

Improve through Meditation.

Meditation develops the great faculties of the Mind—stimulates and arouses the imagination. Meditation places in clear vision before your eyes the best that is in you so that you may easily study out and evolve improvement. A noted painter, on being retirmanded for his careless habits in not completing a great picture for which he had a contract, replied: "I am continually painting it within myself."

Improve through Meditation.

You grow from within out. And as you Meditate, your ideas multiply, your fallacies creep away, and the best of your thoughts are moulded into sound Judgment and strong Opinion. Most of the notable achievements in history started in quiet Meditation at the close of a day, after some disappointment, or during the odd moments of busy tasks.

Improve through Meditation.

Take advantage of the daily chances for Meditation. They may prove to be the vital and supreme moments of your life as they have many times proved for many a notable career. But Meditate not on useless thoughts and trifles. Put your life plans frequently before yourself. Meditate upon them. Study their defects. Meditate, upon how to correct them. Search for ideas. Meditate before deciding. Meditate to grow.

No Such Simplicity.

(From The Washington Star.)

There was never such a thing as "Jeffersonian simplicity." Mr. Jefferson was not a man of simple life, but of a full and expensive life. He was an aristocrat in all his personal tastes and indulged himself. He had traveled in Europe and observed how the trick was turned there. And both as secretary of state and as president he lived at the top of his time.

The First Balloons.

(From a Letter of William Beckford, 1783.)

I suppose you heard of those strange globes, invented in Paris, which rise into the air though incumbered with the weight of human animals. I wish we could procure one and travel together amongst the clouds. At night we would illuminate our flying palace and hover like angry meteors above the habitations of our enemies, who, perhaps, have not yet been made acquainted with this wonderful invention. Like a certain mischievous bird which Ovid celebrates we would dart down upon the graceful innocents and carry them off in spite of the screams of their relations.

Think how triumphantly we should sail through the calm, blue ether, ten thousand feet above this dirty planet!

THE CARPENTER.

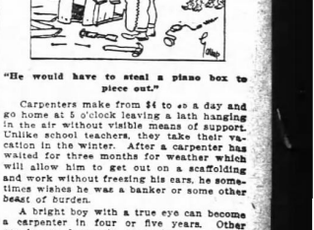
By GEORGE PITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

The carpenter is a dressmaker who works in lumber. His job is to cut out and baste together the materials for a house and to fit it to the family which is to wear it.

Carpenters are born, not educated. It requires a specially designed eye to steer a saw across a twelve-inch board without allowing it to wander on the way like a lodge member returning from initiation. A carpenter can take a wagon load of lumber and work it up into a Gothic barn without wasting anything but the sawdust, whereas if an amateur were to try to build a dog house from the same wagon load he would have to steal a piano box and part of his wife's flour bin in order to piece out.

The badge of the carpenter's profession is a rag around the left hand thumb. He is a quiet man who does not talk much but who loves to get up shortly after sunrise and produce a riot with his hammer and saw. Two carpenters building a barn can produce a chorus which can be heard all over a big county, but always on key. The song of the carpenter's saw is the anthem of prosperity and when the carpenter loafs and his small son uses his chisels to dig fish worms the census returns of that city are not worth gathering.

The carpenter lives a wild, free life on the ridge poles and eaves like a cat and likes nothing better than to fill his face full of shingle nails and put a new lid on the house of a prominent citizen. Nothing fills the common or garden man with more awe than to see a carpenter drive a large low-browed nail into the side of a house without using guides or sights. A carpenter can drive a nail six inches into a beam with five blows but an amateur needs no better than that. He can drive it forty-two feet in an oblique direction with one wild swat.



"He would have to steal a piano box to piece out."

Carpenters make from $4 to $6 a day and go home at 5 o'clock leaving a lath hanging in the air without visible means of support. Unlike school teachers, they take their vacation in the winter. After a carpenter has waited for three months for weather which will allow him to get out on a scaffolding and work without freezing his ears, he sometimes wishes he was a banker or some other beast of burden.

A bright boy with a true eye can become a carpenter in four or five years. Other people can learn the trade in from 100 to 400 years, providing a good natured public gives them enough houses and timber to practice upon.

Motion Pictures For the Blind.

Startling as it may seem, Professor Dussard, of Paris, a scientist of considerable note, has produced a motion picture apparatus for the blind, by means of which they may experience the illusion of moving objects as people with full powers of vision do in viewing an illuminated screen. The apparatus consists of a machine operated by electricity, which causes a series of reliefs, representing trees, birds or other objects, to pass rapidly under the fingers. The reliefs are so graduated that the delicate sense of touch of the blind translates their variations into apparent movements of the objects which are represented. The device is mainly employed for educational purposes.

How to Keep the Indian.

(From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

One great service the government can give the Indian is so to regulate surroundings that tricky traders and camp followers may not be permitted to swindle them. The white swindler has been a great menace to the Indian. Take him away, put educated men in charge, who will teach modern agriculture to the men and domestic science to the women, require all Indians owning land to settle on it or lose their government aid. This would be helping the Indians and preparing them for freedom.

FRIENDS TELL FRANK OF JURY'S VERDICT

fluenced by mob law!" he exclaimed. Mrs. Frank threw her arms about the neck of her husband and sobbed bitterly. Frank smiled down at her, caressed her head and pleaded with her to be brave. He spoke hurriedly to Dr. Rosenberg and Rabbi Marx and Mrs. Frank was persuaded to leave the jail. She was weeping as she came through the main corridor which was thronged with newspaper reporters. Dr. Rosenberg on one side, and Rabbi Marx on the other, Mrs. Frank was hurried to an auto and driven away. She would not answer the querries of a half dozen eager reporters who gathered about the car.

Rabbi Marx returned to the prisoner in his cell. When he came down stairs he told reporters that Frank had made no statement, and has offered no comment.

Frank Asserts Innocence.

Shortly afterward Dr. Wildauer came downstairs from the prisoner's cell. He declared that the first statement made by Frank was:

"I am as innocent today as I was one year ago."

Dr. Wildauer told newspaper men that Frank's composure was wonderful. He declared that in all his experience he never knew of a man to hold up under such a terrific strain. Leonard Haas, who was associated with Messrs. Rosser and Arnold in the defense of Frank, said that Frank kept his nerve throughout the time the case was in the hands of the jury.

At 6:15 o'clock, the Seligs' auto drove up to the jail, and the chauffeur carried up Frank's supper. He ate the meal with relish, apparently, and thanked the negro driver for the trouble.

Many Denied Admittance.

Quite a number of persons called at the Tower and tried to gain admittance to the prisoner's cell. Sheriff Mangum and Deputy Suttles kept every one but Frank's personal friends and members of the family from him. The newspaper reporters were forced to use strategy to get within hearing distance of the cell.

While Rabbi Marx was in the main corridor of the Tower, Mrs. Marx drove up to the jail in an auto. She was in hysterics, and sobbed bitterly through the outer bars. She pleaded to be allowed to speak one word with Frank. She left exclaiming to her husband:

"Oh, please take me away from Atlanta."

While Frank was eating his supper, a Constitution reporter sought out Jim Conley, the negro whose remarkable confession was the connecting link in the chain of circumstances welded by Solicitor Dorsey for the state. The negro did not seem anxious to discuss the verdict against Frank.

"The jury found Mr. Frank guilty, Jim, what do you think about it?" he was asked.

"Me, boss, Lawd, I's got nuthin ter say," he replied and sulked away.

Newt Lee is Sorry.

It was different with Newt Lee, the negro watchman, who was first suspected of the murder of the little Phagan girl.

"I'se sorry," Newt declared, "I sho' is sorry."

That was all the comment Newt would make. But he was anxious to know if Solicitor Dorsey would turn him loose, and grinned when he was informed that his freedom was not far off.

Only a few friends remained with Frank at 9 o'clock, but the latter still declined to see newspaper men. He sent down word that a statement would be prepared for the papers by Rabbi Marx.

No Statement from Frank.

Rabbi David Marx, friend and adviser of Leo Frank, declared late last night that the prisoner had no statement to make. He explained that Frank, after consulting with his attorneys, Messrs. Luther Rosser and Reuben Arnold, had decided to make no comment on the case as yet.

Frank could not be reached in his cell in the Tower. At 9:30 o'clock his friends left him alone, and at 10 o'clock had retired. The keepers at the Tower say that he ate heartily of the meal sent him early in the evening.

"I was not confident that I would acquit me, and could hardly believe it when they told me that I had been convicted. I hope to get justice yet."

This he told Dr. H. J. Rosenberg, his family physician.

Frank's friends were reticent as to the future plans of the prisoner. Last night they were all concerned about Mrs. Frank, wife of the prisoner, and Mrs. Rae Frank, his mother.

Slow Old State.

(From The Boston Globe.)

Why is the growth of New Hampshire so slow? The state now has only three times as many people as it had when the first census was taken, 120 years ago, while the country as a whole has 21 times as many. The present population of New Hampshire is 430,572, which is more than ever before, but considerably less than that of Boston.

Anyway those women whose babies do not win a prize at a baby show have the satisfaction of entertaining a distinct opinion about the judges.

Here Is the Chronological Order Of Final Day of Frank's Trial

To those who sat with pent-up excitement in the court room Monday, on the last day of the Leo Frank trial, the various events rushed by with kaleidoscopic regularity. At that time it seemed a long wait between each picture as it flashed on the screen, but looking back on it, the spectator feels that one came after the other in such short order that the real significance of each had not been taken in before the next event was past.

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey entered the court room promptly at 9 o'clock amid a storm of cheers on the outside and tumultuous hand-clapping in the courtroom. He began his speech and then things went on with regularity until the verdict came.

Chronological Order.

The following table shows the chronological order of the events of the day, up to the moment when the word reached the anxious crowd outside whose wild cheering almost drowned the voice of the solicitor as he went through the formality of polling the jury.

9 a. m.—Dorsey renewed his speech.

12 noon—Dorsey concluded.

12:05 p. m.—Attorney Arnold requested that the jury leave the room, and then made a motion for a mistrial on account of the popular demonstration from time to time. Judge Roan then told the jury had left the room, announced this would be taken up after he had charged the jury. He then recalled the jury and began his charge.

1 p. m.—Judge Roan denies motion for mistrial.

2 p. m.—Jury goes to room to deliberate.

2:36 p. m.—Documents in case are brought to jury and actual deliberation starts.

3:25 p. m.—Jury reaches verdict, and sends deputy to notify Judge Roan.

Confers With Attorneys.

3 p. m.—Judge Roan returns from lunch and retires to anteroom where he confers with Attorneys Hooper and Stephens, of the prosecution.

4:30 p. m.—Sheriff Mangum from the hall orders all persons cleared of all but officials and newspaper men.

4:45 p. m.—The last spectator leaves and the doors are locked. The sheriff then states those remaining that no demonstration will be allowed.

4:50 p. m.—Judge Roan enters the room and takes his seat on the bench.

4:55 p. m.—Solicitor Hugh Dorsey enters.

4:58 p. m.—Jury enters.

5:05 p. m.—In a voice through which sobs are breaking, the solicitor begins the formal polling of the jury.

Stepfather of Murdered Girl Thanks Members of the Jury

Scarcely had Judge Roan concluded his statement thanking the jurors for their attention and careful consideration of every point in the cases, when J. W. Coleman, step-father of the murdered girl, walked over to the jury box with the tears streaming down his face, and silently thanked each man on the jury with a grip of the hand. He then turned to Judge Roan, and, shaking his hand, thanked him for the calm he had shown with the trial and for his fair dealing with all parties concerned.

To a Constitution reporter Mr. Coleman made the following statement:

"I want to say that I am entirely satisfied with the manner in which the trial has been conducted, and also with the verdict returned.

"I knew by looking at the faces of the jurors as they were chosen that they were all men who could be relied upon to give fair and careful consideration to each point and that they were of the high type of character who would give their best efforts as citizens of this commonwealth without thought of themselves to determine the guilt or innocence of Leo Frank.

"I would not, for any consideration, like to see an innocent man pay the death penalty, but I feel sure that anyone in the world who has kept up with the trial in all its phases and with every scrap of evidence submitted would have found Frank guilty as these honorable gentlemen have done. I am deeply grateful to them and to Judge Roan."

Only One Ballot Taken by Jury And Fate of Frank Was Decided

Although each member of the jury which brought in a verdict against Leo M. Frank declined to discuss their deliberations after they had been charged and before the verdict was brought in, it can be stated with positiveness that only one ballot was taken and that the jury was unanimous in that ballot.

Various estimates were made of the time the jury would be out. These ranged all the way from one hour to several days.

When it became whispered around the courtroom that the jury was ready to bring in a verdict, the reporters and lawyers knew what it would be. It would have taken many hours to have reached a verdict if innocent, while a mistrial would not have been announced for days, possibly.

Frank's Trial Lasted 29 Days; Many Court Records Broken

"Gentlemen, the clerk will give you your script; you will get $2 per day for the days you have served on the jury. How many days have you served?"

This is what Judge L. S. Roan said to the Frank jury yesterday afternoon as he finished thanking them for the laborious task.

"This is the twenty-ninth day, your honor," replied two or three jurors at once."

The jurors, like the little boy who count the days until school closes and then the hours, knew exactly how many days they had been locked up and their remark brought forcibly to those who heard them what a long trial it had been.

Case Began July 28.

The case was taken up on July 28. It seems to those who day after day have listened to the case as though it was some time last year that this trial started.

When the case was taken up nearly a month ago, the jury was picked by 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and before the day was over Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of little Mary Phagan, had been on the stand and completed her testimony. Newt Lee, the nightwatchman, had started.

After that as day followed day, sordid tragedy unfolded; grim flashes of humor appeared, charge after charge was hurled and the tide of battle swung back and forth, but even then the state was weaving the rope that the jury found strong enough to convict the defendant.

It was on the first day of the trial that the state tried to show that Mary Phagan feared Leo Frank, and the defense tried to show that she detested George Epps, one of the state's witnesses. Objections from either side clocked each attempt.

On July 30, Luther Rosser riddled the testimony of Detective John Black. Following that R. B. Barrett, an employee of the National Pencil company, told of finding the dead girl's pay envelope. Day Watchman E. L. Holloway denied an affidavit on the stand and Solicitor Dorsey declared that witness had trapped him.

Expert Testimony Begins.

It was on Friday, August 1, that Dr. H. F. Harris declared that the girl had died within 45 minutes after eating dinner and that there was certain evidences of violence to her.

On August 2, Judge Roan inadvertently displayed a newspaper headline to the jury, causing the defense to threaten to ask for a mistrial.

Jim Conley went on the stand August 4. He was off August 6 after having testified for 18 hours, and having been through a merciless, grilling cross-examination for 12 hours. He came out practically unbroken.

It was also on August 6 that Judge Roan denied the motion of the defense to strike out that part of Conley's statement about having previously "watched" Frank at the factory. That will, it is believed, be one of the grounds upon which a new trial will be asked. It was on this occasion that the first note of public feeling among the spectators was heard, when the announcement of the judge was applauded by the spectators.

On the following day C. B. Dalton told his story in which he accused Frank of misconduct and in which he declared that he had visited the factory with women when Frank was there and knew of it. Following this the state rested its case, and the first move of the defense was an attack upon Dr. Harris. Dr. L. W. Childs was selected for this and he branded the statement as a "wild guess."

Defense Opens Case.

It was on the next day that the defense prepared to show that the girl had been thrown down the rear chute and it was on this day also that the pasteboard model of the factory was first exhibited.

On August 11 what Attorney Rosser later described as "the funniest thing that ever came into a courtroom," broke out. It was the old row between Dr. H. F. Harris, secretary of the state board of health, and Dr. Willis Westmoreland, who resigned as president of the board when its members refused to discharge Dr. Harris. The row came into court when Dr. Westmoreland took the stand.

On August 13 Frank's character was put up and Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of the accused, staggered the court room when she burst out by calling the solicitor a dog.

August 18, Frank took the stand, and the following day the defense rested, while the state began its attack on Frank's character.

August 21, Attorney Frank A. Hooper opened for the state and Attorney Reuben Arnold opened for the defense.

August 22, Attorney Rosser closed for the defense.

August 25, Judge Roan charged the jury; the defense asked for, but was denied, a mistrial; the jury found Frank guilty and Judge Roan announced he would pass sentence either Tuesday or Wednesday.

BALTIMORE MAN HELD ON A MASHING CHARGE

Pretty Mrs. P. S. Anderson Smashes Howard Page With Paper, Then Calls Cop.

"They say that Heaven will protect a working girl. A Constitution extra on the Frank trial and an Atlanta policeman protected this one. I guess mashers will let me alone after this," is what pretty Mrs. P. S. Anderson, of 72 Spring street, a night operator at the Southern railroad offices, said to a Constitution reporter last night, telling of an encounter with an alleged masher on the streets of Atlanta.

Speaking further of the affair, Mrs Anderson said:

"I was walking down Whitehall street about 10 o'clock when I saw a man following me. Whenever I would slow up to allow him to pass, he would slow up, too, and walk alongside.

"When I turned in Mitchell street I noticed a policeman. And this man still followed me. When he had gotten about a hundred feet from the policeman, he walked up to me, and said: 'Isn't it rather late for you to be out alone?'

"I told him it was none of his business. Then he edged up and said something else to me. I slapped him in the face with the paper, the only weapon I had, and moved to the officer, and the latter came a-running.

"You are no lady to hit a gentleman,' he said. Then the officer arrived. The man protested against being arrested, saying that he had to catch his train. I told the officer that I was in a hurry, too, but would appear in court against him.

"They took him down, and when I met in court Tuesday afternoon I'm going to tell the whole affair. He thought that I was defenseless. I weigh just about ninety pounds, maybe not that much. He weighs at least one hundred and fifty.

"But he forgot that he was in Atlanta. I guess the next time he will let young Atlanta women alone."

When seen at the police station last night Mr. Page refused to make a statement.

Patrolman S. J. Roberts is the officer who made the arrest. Page will be tried in the recorder's court in the recorder's court this afternoon.

Negro Killed in Fight.

Douglasville, Ga., August 25.—(Special.)—Luther Evans, a negro, shot and instantly killed another negro, Seab Longino, in front of the negro Methodist church here last night. The shooting occurred while services were going on in the church and Evans stood on the church steps and shot his opponent, Longino was found with a knife open in his hands and it is supposed he was advancing on Evans when shot. Evans made his escape and has not been captured thus far.

Scott May Succeed Pierce As Pinkerton Agency Chief

HARRY SCOTT

H. B. Pierce, superintendent of the Pinkerton agency, has resigned while an investigation was in progress of charges brought against him for insubordination resulting in his conduct of the Frank case.

It is predicted that Harry Scott, assistant superintendent, will succeed him. Scott was a dominant figure in the Phagan investigation, and engineered the third degree which resulted in Jim Conley's confession.

A. S. Cowardin, of New Orleans, general superintendent of the Pinkerton organization, stated last night to a Constitution reporter that he had been sent to Atlanta to investigate Pierce's reported insubordination in leaving the city while under subpoena to appear as witness in the famous trial.

Solicitor Dorsey, in course of the trial, developed that Pinkerton operatives, under direction of the Atlanta superintendent, had discovered the bloody club and envelope, which was concealed for considerable while from knowledge of the police and detective department.

The solicitor openly accused Pierce of underhand methods and of betraying his trust to the police department. It will be recalled that a short while before the opening of the trial Chief Lanford, of the detective department, publicly denounced Pierce for tactics employed in the investigation.

Two nights before the Frank trial Harry Scott was promoted to the superintendency of the Houston Pinkerton offices. He will remain in Atlanta, however, it was announced by Mr. Cowardin. Both Scott and Pierce have been residents of this city since the opening of the Pinkerton branch two or more years ago.

Pierce returned to Atlanta Sunday night.

AT THE THEATERS.

Emma Bunting.

(At the Lyric.)

There have been so many inquiries for seats for the coming engagement of Emma Bunting at the Lyric theater that the management has decided to place them on sale a little earlier than usual. Therefore, instead of the opening sale taking place on Thursday, the box office will open Wednesday morning at 10 a. m. Miss Bunting's engagement is limited to one week.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

There are a number of excellent feature acts at the Forsyth this week which will attract notice and draw crowds to the cozy playhouse.

Most novel of all is the "Svengali" mystery act, in which a young lady comes out on the stage, is hypnotized by her partner, and then plays selections from any opera requested by the audience. Her voice is a beautiful one, but attractiveness of voice and skill in singing is almost forgotten by the audience in wondering how the professor, who is out in the audience, lets his partner know what opera is asked for.

The Meredith sisters, who have been here once before, when they won their audience by popular songs, have several songs which make them favorites. "Oriental Eyes" made a big hit with the audience on Monday afternoon.

Fred Bond and Miss Fremont Benton offered a clever comedy entitled, "Handkerchief No. 16." The laughter began when Bond came upon the stage, and never stopped until the curtain dropped.

Lewis and Dody in comedy pleased; Claude Golden, the card expert, is a big help to the bill; Joe Bryan, in a monologue, is fair, and the Four Regals open.

Can We Trust Ourselves?

(From Leslie's.)

Light. Can we always be trusted to do the right thing? The fear of death is general. Life is sacrificed every hour because the rules of health are not obeyed. Death is the one great monster of dread and from whom all flee. Yet how many safeguard their living in such a way as to avert his coming? The rules of health are violated because of the immunity we feel, but finally the penalty must be paid. No argument is needed to enforce the lesson. Everybody knows it. The rules of right living are clear, explicit. Vice, intemperance, wrong living, over-eating as well as over-drinking, continue to pay their tribute to the undertaker and the graveyard.

DR. GEORGE Y. PIERCE DIED MONDAY MORNING

Dr. George Y. Pierce, 59 years of age, for twenty years a prominent Atlanta physician, died at his residence, at 8:40 o'clock Monday morning. His death was a shock, as he had been ill only a few days.

He is survived by his wife, and two sons, George Theodore Pierce, and Wilbur Y. Pierce.

Besides being a well-known practitioner, Dr. Pierce was well-known in the local political world, having served several terms as alderman for the Fifth ward, and was a member of the board of education at the time of his death.

Dr. Pierce was a steward of St. James' Methodist church, and a man of high character. He was a native of Fulton county.

The funeral will be held from St. James' this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

A. D. OLIVER WANTED NOW IN MISSISSIPPI

Decatur County Wallingford, His Term Nearly Completed, May Be Returned to Pen.

A requisition was received yesterday at the governor's office from the governor of Mississippi for A. D. Oliver, who will complete a term in the Georgia penitentiary September 9 for bigamy. It is claimed by the Mississippi authorities that Oliver is an escaped prisoner from the penitentiary of that state, where he was serving a term for obtaining money under false pretenses. The name by which he is said to have been known in Mississippi is C. Hardin.

As a "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," Oliver created one of the biggest sensations that ever stirred southwest Georgia. He settled in the little town of Climax, near Bainbridge, Ga., where he established a bank and was soon buying every thing in sight, from real estate to automobiles.

Got About $100,000.

He married the daughter of one of the leading men in the county and for a time had everything his way. He is said to have obtained about $100,000 all told from the too-trusting citizens of that section.

When he was arrested in 1909, it having developed that he had another wife living, Oliver, alias Hardin, was prosecuted for bigamy and found guilty.

The marriage being null, Mrs. Oliver subsequently married another man, the ceremony having been performed in Fulton county. Oliver was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary and was assigned to work upon the roads in Lee county.

Claims Alibi.

Now that his term is almost expired, the Mississippi authorities will press their requisition. Oliver will make a fight against this and attempt to set up an alibi.

He claims that the man wanted in Mississippi is not him, but his twin brother, who he says, is now in South America. He has filed a number of affidavits with the governor to substantiate this claim.

Although his term will expire in a few weeks, Oliver has applied to the prison commission for clemency. He claims that he was not guilty of the crime charged and that the prosecution was inspired by the man who subsequently married the woman to whom he was wedded in Decatur county.

GAME WARDEN MAILS 28,000 LICENSES

Game Warden Jesse E. Mercer has just mailed out 28,000 hunting licenses to all parts of the state. It is considered likely that every one of them will be sold.

The season for quail and doves will not open until November 20, but many licenses are wanted for shooting squirrels and foxes. Last year the hunting licenses brought in $28,000.

"Birds are more plentiful this year than ever before, thanks to the protection afforded them by the game law," said Mr. Mercer. "I have little doubt that hunters, too, will be more plentiful than last year."

Grace Church Revival.

The revival services at Grace Methodist church are increasing in attendance and interest and the large chorus led by the singing evangelist, O. W. Stapleton, is doing fine singing. Rev. M. Bass is preaching two and three sermons a day and people from all over the city are attending the meetings. Tuesday morning at 10 a. m. there will be a mothers' meeting, and at 4 p. m. a meeting for women and girls only.

GIBSON CASE REVERSED BY COURT OF APPEALS

A county treasurer who transfers money from one fund to another is not guilty of embezzlement, according to a decision handed down by the court of appeals yesterday.

Gibson was elected treasurer of Brooks county to take the place of his deceased father. On coming into office, he discovered that there was a shortage during his father's administration of the office. To protect the dead man's memory, he manipulated the fund so as to cover up the shortage with money coming into his hands after he assumed the office.

The lower court found Gibson guilty but the court of appeals, reversing this finding, held that the defendant was not guilty of embezzlement, as he had not taken the money himself but simply transferred the funds from the books of one year to those of another.

The county authorities are proceeding on the bond of the late treasurer to collect the shortage.

WRITTEN NOTICE NOT NEEDED IN DAMAGE SUIT

In a decision handed down yesterday morning by the court of appeals, it was held that a damage suit against the Western Union Telegraph company was valid, although the plaintiff did not file his claim against the company in writing as stipulated on the back of the telegraph blank.

The title of the case was Western Union Telegraph company vs. Pitts. It came from the superior court of Carroll county where Judge R. W. Freeman was the trial judge.

While the plaintiff in the trial below did not give the company written notice, it developed that he gave oral notice of his grievance to the agent of the company within a week after the message was sent. This, the court held, was equivalent to written notice.

TO GIRL AND HER DOG WILSON PROVES KIND

Parsons, Kas., August 25.—A Kansas girl and her pet dog, with the assistance of President Wilson, have broken down the strict rule against dogs being permitted in Yellowstone park.

Miss Ethel Provest, of Parsons, today received an announcement from the department of the interior that her request to take her dog, "Fanny," into the park had been granted. The girl recently wrote to President Wilson:

"My father is soon to take the management of a hotel in Yellowstone National park. We have been informed that no dogs are allowed in the park confines. Mr. President, I am 18 years old and our old dog, Fanny, is the same age. We have never been separated and I cannot bear the thought of leaving her behind. She is very old for a dog and would not be able to harm any of the park animals."

President Wilson replied that he would see what could be done.

LADS OF THE EAST SIDE STANDING BY SULZER

New York, August 25.—Five East Side lads, ranging in age from 13 to 15 years, have started on a walk to Albany with a letter expressing sympathy for Governor Sulzer, impeached by the state assembly. The heralds are members of the East Side Protective association, an organization of 8,000 school boys.

The little band is dressed in khaki uniforms, with knapsacks. Meals will be cooked over camp fires and bedding made in the open air. The boys hope to reach Albany by Thursday to present their message to Governor Sulzer.

UNCLE SAM TRUSTEE OF THE PHILIPPINES

Washington, August 25.—Whatever is done by the United States with respect to the Philippine islands is to be gauged by the best interests of the people of the archipelago, and not by what might be construed as selfish purposes of the American government.

That is the view President Wilson and Francis Burton Harrison, newly appointed governor general, take of the question of the Philippine independence according to information today at the white house.

The president believes the United States, in the profoundest sense, is the trustee of the Philippines and to carry out its trusteeship wisely is the keynote of policy of his administration.

It was indicated that while no proposal for immediate independence now was considered, a policy of active preparation for granting independence within a few years would be pursued by the United States.

Cotton Mills Resume.

Fall River, Mass., August 25.—The seven mills of the Fall River Iron works plant, manufacturing cotton cloth, resumed operations today after a shut down of fifteen weeks. The plant employs between 5,000 and 6,000 hands.

TARIFF REVISION VOTE MAY COME NEXT WEEK

Rapid Progress on the Measure Being Made by the Senate.

Washington, August 25.—Ratification of the free list in the tariff bill, with reservation of a few commodities for later consideration; agreement by democrats of the finance committee to consider an amendment by Senator Kenyon which would automatically transfer trust controlled articles to the free list; discussion of free print paper and the paper schedule and a lively debate on southern and New England cotton mills enlivened the tariff debate in the senate today.

So rapid was the progress in consideration of the free list that democratic leaders were led to predict an early passage of the bill, some insisting it would be ready for a vote by the middle of next week. In the midst of this progress, however, were injected several set speeches which precipitated a long colloquy between Senators Lippitt of Rhode Island and Smith of South Carolina, over relative conditions in New England and southern cotton mills. This occupied several hours and left the schedule considerably behind for the day.

Free Raw Wool.

Free raw wool was among the proposals in the free list approved by the senate in "committee of the whole" but this will come up again on substitutes offered in the senate proper.

Free meat, cattle, sheep, swine and wheat were passed over at the request of Senator McCumber of North Dakota.

Senator Smith, of South Carolina, assailing the foreign labor in New England cotton mills and the wages paid, provoked a sectional debate, Senator Lippitt retorting with a description of the child labor in the south and a comparison of wages, showing the southern wages to be lower than those paid in New England cotton mills.

The paper schedule was agreed to as amended by the finance committee with the exception of the paragraph on wrapping paper, which was passed over at the suggestion of Senator Hughes, in charge of the schedule.

The Sundries Schedule.

The sundries schedule was taken up and the paragraphs on braids, brooms, brushes and buttons agreed to. Senator Bristow protested that the reduced duties on brooms was another discrimination against products in which farmers were interested. Senator Cummins protested against the reduced duties on the cheaper grades of buttons, claiming that the rates proposed would put the Iowa manufacturers out of business.

During the afternoon Senator Ashurst delivered a general defense of the bill, comparing it with other tariff measures of the past. He denied that it was a studied discrimination against the farming class.

An amendment to the foreign meat inspection clause was proposed to the finance committee today by the business men's association, which suggested the original clause providing that an inspection of foreign meat equal to the inspection of American meat should be sufficient. The amendment is designed to clarify the clause providing that such foreign inspected meat shall enjoy the same rights and privileges as accorded American meat inspected under the inspection laws of 1906.

Banks Are Merged.

Washington, August 25.—Announcement was made today of the consolidation of the Union Savings Bank of the District of Columbia and the Commercial National Bank, the latter taking the savings institution over. The combined banking establishments will have assets in excess of $10,000,000. The merger became effective today.

WOMAN WHO KILLED TWO LAUGHS AND JOKES IN HER CELL

Millen, Ga., August 25.—(Special.)—Apparently entirely unconcerned by the gravity of the situation she faces, Mrs. Edna M. Godbee, confined in the Jenkins county jail charged with the murder of her former husband, Judge Walter S. Godbee, and his bride of two months, Mrs. Florence Boyer Godbee, in the Millen postoffice last Monday morning, laughed and chatted in hearty jovial manner today with Mrs. M. G. Johnson, wife of the sheriff.

Mrs. Johnson is the first outsider whom Mrs. Godbee has received in her cell in the county jail, other than her attorneys, her two sons and their wives, her daughter and Rev. E. E. Rose, pastor of the Millen Methodist church, since the tragedy was enacted a week ago today.

Mrs. Johnson reported that Mrs. Godbee showed no signs of the tragedy having "got on her nerves" and she says that the good humor and spirits of the defendant were entirely unaffected by the affair, so far as she could judge.

BABY DIES FROM DOSE CONTAINED IN BOTTLE IT FOUND

Americus, Ga., August 25.—(Special.) Getting possession of a bottle of morphine left carelessly in the waiting room of the Seaboard depot at Leslie, near Americus, the young son of Station Agent Williams, aged 18 months, swallowed a quantity of the drug. Despite the efforts of several physicians, the child died a few hours thereafter.

6 MONTHS ON GANG AS PENALTY FOR FLIRTING WITH GIRL

Athens, Ga., August 25.—(Special.)—Six months in stripes on the streets of Athens at labor is the penalty for annoying young girls who have to travel alone on the trains entering Athens, according to the mayor in sentencing a young man named J. H. Maxey this morning in police court.

He had flirted at a girl of 16 who was coming into Athens Saturday night on the Georgia train and persisted in his unwelcome attentions after the girl's mother had met her at the train.

NO MURDER CHARGE AGAINST MRS. LUCAS

Savannah, Ga., August 25.—(Special.)—After a preliminary hearing in police court this morning, Mrs. Hattie Lucas, charged with the murder of Smart Lloyd, colored, in Meinhard Thursday night, and her husband, B. F. Lucas, charged with being an accessory before the facts, were dismissed by Recorder Schwarz.

The hearing continued for an hour. During the hearing Mr. and Mrs. Lucas made a statement of the affair yet given out. The husband was the first to make the statement. He said when he went home that afternoon his wife told him of a statement Lloyd had made, in which he threatened to knock her teeth down her throat because she had accused Lizzie Lloyd of the theft of two dollars.

RESIGNED VOLUNTARILY SAY MASSEE'S FRIENDS

Macon, Ga., August 25.—(Special.)—W. J. Massee, president of the Georgia Public Service Corporation, denies that he was deposed from the presidency of the Macon Railway and Light company. This statement has been made in stories dealing with the local political situation.

Mr. Massee's friends say that he not only resigned voluntarily from the presidency of the Macon Railway and Light company, but that he declined an offer at a larger salary to remain with the company. Therefore the correction is made in justice to him.

AMERICAN MURDERED IN ASIATIC TURKEY

Constantinople, August 25.—The United States embassy here has dispatched Lewis Heck, acting vice consul, to open an inquiry into circumstances attending the murder last week of Dr. Charles H. Holbrook, an American missionary, at the Soushehir, Asiatic Turkey.

According to the official reports Dr. Holbrook, who was a native of Lynn, Mass., was sleeping in the garden surrounding the house of an Armenian who had been paying attentions to some Turkish women. Two Turks determined to punish the Armenian, forced their way into the garden, and shot the sleeping Dr. Holbrook in mistake for the owner of the house.

This version of the affair is discredited by private advices to the Bible house, which indicate that the murder was a deliberate one.

The murderers have been arrested and are awaiting trial.

BANKERS TO DISCUSS NEEDS OF THE FARMERS

Kansas City, Mo., August 25.—Bankers from many states arrived here today to attend the annual meeting tomorrow and Wednesday of the committee on agricultural development and education of the American Bankers' association. It is expected forty states will be represented by about 250 delegates.

The program calls for discussions of all matters affecting the raising and marketing of crops, good roads, better farming methods and vocational education. George Woodruff, of Joliet, Ill., is to report the result of an investigation of the farm credit systems in Germany, France and other European countries.

Hotel Guests Alarmed.

Columbus, Ga., August 25.—(Special.)—An alarm of fire at the Rankin house, one of the leading hotels here, caused an outpouring of guests in scanty attire at 2 o'clock this morning. The night clerk discovered flames and smoke in the kitchen and gave a great alarm with the result that all the guests were soon on the sidewalks. The fire was confined to the kitchen and did little damage.

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED AGAINST GOV. SULZER

Indictment of Murphy and Other Tammany Leaders Is to Be Asked.

New York, August 25.—The indictment of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall; Aaron J. Levy, leader of the democratic majority in the assembly, and Senator James J. Frawley, chairman of the committee which investigated Governor Sulzer's campaign contributions, has been requested of the district attorneys of New York and Albany counties by Lynn J. Arnold, of Albany, an ardent Sulzer supporter.

The indictment of the three leaders is asked on statements of many persons presented by Judge Arnold to the district attorneys, regarding an alleged conspiracy to put Sulzer out of the governor's chair. In announcing, Judge Arnold repeated his declaration that money had been freely used to accomplish this result.

Judge Arnold, who is publisher of The Press-Knickerbocker-Express, of Albany, said today:

"My newspaper has been friendly to Sulzer in this fight, because we thought he was not getting a square deal. Because of this friendliness, many persons have written to us and called at our office to tell us what they knew of a plot on the part of certain men whom I cannot name now, to disgrace Sulzer and put him out of the governor's chair.

"This evidence has been placed before competent lawyers, and they believe with me that it is sufficient to warrant, in connection with the impeachment proceedings. As an instance of the number of men who are ready to testify in connection with the impeachment proceedings, I will say that ten men came into our office Saturday afternoon with evidence relating to this matter. We believe that it is amply strong to warrant the indictment of Murphy, Levy and Frawley and others. I cannot say how many others now nor can I tell the nature of the charges.

"They go to show, however, that there was a conspiracy and a plot against Sulzer. More than that, they tend to prove a fiendish crime far greater than that.

"This evidence, in part, is in the hands of District Attorney Whitman and the district attorney of Albany county. They are considering it. What they think of it I am not at liberty to say. They will have more of it soon."

GIRL AND SWEETHEART FOUND DEAD IN BOAT

Rockland, Maine, August 25.—The bodies of Carl W. Perry and Angie Spear, high schools students, were found floating in Penobscot bay today. Both had been shot to death. Appearances seemed to indicate that Perry did the shooting.

A revolver with three shells exploded was found in the boat. There was nothing to indicate whether the deaths were the result of a suicide pact. There were two wounds in the girl's body. The police believe that after Miss Spear had been killed Perry shot himself through the mouth.

Eleven Inning Tie---Double Header Today

EDITED BY Dick Jemison

WHIFFS

Unequaled.

BISLAND'S sensational fielding Saturday in the game with the Billikens, when he accepted fourteen assists and one put out, is a Southern league record as far as we can ascertain after running over the records. The most number of assists previously recorded by a shortstop is ten, made by Bill Lindsay, former shortstop of the New Orleans Pelicans, now on the Pacific coast. The nearest approach to the most number of chances, 15, was made this season by Milton Stock, the Mobile shortstop, who on July 15 had 6 put outs and 7 assists. Bisland and Stock are tied for the second largest number of assists this season with eight each.

The Outlook.

THIS WEEK is the one that counts. If the Crackers waltz into Memphis and New Orleans and grab off at least six of the eight games that are to be played, then, when the Gulls come here next week, old crucial series will be right in our midst again. The Gulls are meeting the Barons and the Lookouts and they are going to find the going extremely rough, as these two clubs are fighting for a first place berth right now.

Fighting Gamely.

THE GULLS will deserve a world of credit if they cop the bunting in the face of their present set back. They have only three pitchers that they can work. Cavet is out for the season with a bad eye and Robertson has such a sore arm that he may not be able to pitch any more this year. Can Hogg, Berger and Campbell carry the burden? That is a question. If they can, you've got to hand it to them and the Gulls. If they can not, it will be just one of those breaks that happen to all ball clubs.

Their White Hope.

DAVE ROBERTSON, the leaders' star batsman, is proving the Gulls' white hope. Now that the twirling staff has been shot to pieces, Dave has come to the rescue and is going to pitch every fourth day, besides playing outfield the other three. He is the big outfielder comes through as well in the box as he has in the outfield, and this calamity howl about the Gulls being overhauled will be sidetracked.

True Sportsmanship.

IF THE SERIES with the Gulls that starts a week from today develops in the meantime as the series that will decide which team is going to the pennant, we hope that the Gulls will have their full fighting strength on the field. If we beat them, let's do it when they're intact. This will eliminate any 'alibi' stuff after the series is over. And it would be a greater accomplishment for the Crackers.

We Should Worry.

"IN ATLANTA Smith has a fine collection of ball players—heavy hitters, but his pitching staff is nothing wonderful," says The Birmingham Age-Herald. Well, admit that the pitching staff was the cause of the Crackers downfall the first part of the season, but if the season was just starting, Price, Conselman, Thompson and Dent could carry the money at any time. If we started the season with this quartet, there would be nothing to it. The Birmingham Ledger scribe to the contrary notwithstanding, we would not swap this quartet for any in the league and eliminating Bill Hough, we would not swap any single one of them for any pitcher Birmingham has. If these pitchers are so bad, as The Ledger scribe would have us believe, why is it that Price, Conselman and Dent are in the first ten of the league pitchers and Thompson is batting his Birmingham record, is not far behind. We leave that with him for thought.

Times Have Changed.

THE CUBS, the famous machine of Frank Chance, used to walk roughshod over the Giants. How times have changed. This season the Giants have been smearing it on the Cubs practically every time they have met and have won enough games to give them the edge for the season regardless of the outcome of the games the rest of the season. It is the first time the Giants have won a season series from the Cubs since 1903.

They're Right.

THE CARDINALS are sore because Manager Huggins is riding them and planting fines. This according to an exchange. Another after reading the report says: Some of the Cardinal players do not need conversation or fines—they need dynamite.

"Phew! Throw that rope away, old chap. Here's a real five-caster.

"Your honor, to save the prosecution the trouble of impeaching the testimony of my client, I'll admit that I wouldn't believe him under oath myself.

"You forgot that you had promised to call yesterday, did you, Mrs. Chucksley? Well, I didn't forget it, and I was awfully afraid you'd come. Good-by."

Turtles and Crackers Fight Eleven Innings to a Draw; Double Bill This Afternoon

By Dick Jemison.

The Turtles and the Crackers battled eleven innings at Ponce de Leon Monday afternoon until darkness called a halt to the festivities for the day, the count standing 3 to 3.

They presented the Monday crowd with as good a game of ball as has been staged at Poncey this season.

Joe Conselman and Glen Liebhardt were the opposing twirlers, and both "had something" when they were men on the bases threatening to score, and towards the close of the game they got better.

Both teams got bad breaks at critical moments. Some batter got a good hold on a fast one only to have it sail right at a waiting fielder, and runners were on the runways every time one of these acid licks were pulled.

Errors Hurt Locals.

The Turtles got their three runs on errors, the Crackers on clean hitting. Had he received better support, Conselman would have had a shut-out to his credit.

Love, of Memphis, and Long, of Atlanta, were the hitting stars. The former got four singles in five tries. The latter two singles, a triple and a sacrifice in five attempts.

Ward's great fielding on bunts by the Crackers prevented the locals from walking away with the battle. He fielded seven hard-hit balls with great ease and staved off what looked like sure binders.

The Turtles tallied all their runs in the sixth. Love led off with a single. Merritt popped a fly to left, which Long dropped. Baerwald kicked in with a single to right scoring Love and Merritt went to third and Baerwald to second on the throw to the plate.

Merritt tallied when Conselman uncorked a wild heave. Baerwald, called when Ward's hit to Bland. Bizzo could not throw to the plate. He made a perfect throw to first, but Agler was not looking and the ball sailed to the grand stand.

Long Triples.

The Crackers got two back in the sixth. Agler beat out a bunt down the third base line and Long came in when Love crashed a triple to the scoreboard. Long counted when Smith dropped a fast one over the fence.

The locals tied it up in the eighth. Agler beat out a hit to short. Long sacrificed him down. Welchonce kicked in with a single to left.

The locals had a fine chance to win the game in the tenth. With one gone, Agler got a free base and stole. Agler Long had lined to right. Welchonce was walked purposely. Smith got one full in the face, and sailed it on a line over second, scoring Agler and playing away out of position, got the ball right in his hands.

Two and forty minutes of work for no thing. The tie will be played off this afternoon. Price and Thompson will wait for the Crackers, with Harrell and Parsons for the Turtles.

Both ought to be good ball games. Despite their low position in the race, the Turtles have been playing as good baseball as any team in the casue during the past month and they'll fight the Crackers hard. They always do.

By adding two additional runs in the ninth Mobile won easily, 7 to 2. Birmingham was outplayed from every angle.

Nashville, Tenn., August 25.—Williams was too strong for New Orleans today and Nashville won, 5 to 0. The visitors were helpless before the fire of Williams, who, in addition to being steady on strikes and but four annoying safe raps. The locals bunched hits in four innings and this, coupled with erratic work by the visitors, brought the score up.

Americus, Ga., August 25.—(Special.) Americus came to the front in a lucky seventh rally and took today's game from Cordele 10 to 5. Red Dacey was on the firing line for the locals and pitched good ball. He gave up only six hits. Baby Wilder pitched for the visitors and went nicely until the seventh. Grady Bowen's home run and Khiman Bernsteins and Eubanks' and Archer's triples featured. The game was fast and interesting all the way.

Thomasville 1, Valdosta 0.

Thomasville, August 25.—(Special.) Thomasville made it eleven straight from Valdosta today, 1 to 0, in a fast, snappy game. Cheney was opposed by Vaughn, and both pitched beautiful ball, keeping their binglies well scattered. Cheney, in the second with two men on bases, forced out two. Thomasville scored in the eighth when Parker singled sharply and scored when Wagner doubled to deep right, his third successive hit in as many times at bat. Only one error was made, and that by Murch, who made a beautiful stop of Hurley's grounder but drew Davenport's throw to base on the throw. Murch's fielding was great, several scraps of hard grounders being pitched featured. Valdosta played without error and held the locals down at several stages where a hit would have meant a run.

Colonel W. L. Peel Will Start Sweepstakes at Motordrome; McNeil Benefit on Friday

Colonel William Lawson Peel will start the three heats of the Sweepstakes, which bears his name, and which will be the feature event of the local Motordrome tonight.

Colonel Peel is a motorcycle enthusiast. When asked by the management of the Motordrome to permit the use of his name in a sweepstakes and the honor of having him start the events, he readily assented.

The six riders are willing to ride for Colonel Peel from the drop of the flag. "We're going to show Atlanta fans the fastest time that has yet been made, and Colonel Peel will be proud of his race."

QUERIES ANSWERED

Under this head the sporting editor will endeavor to answer all questions pertaining to all branches of sports.

Dick Jemison, sporting editor The Constitution: Please inform me as to the number of players thrown out by Bisland on Saturday. I contend that the only assists made by Bisland were to first base. Dunn not holding the throw to the plate. W. R. M.

Your contention is wrong. Bisland gets an assist on the throw to Dunn. Umpire Wilderhaus had called the runner out, then waved him safe when Dunn dropped the ball. Dunn at first base should not be charged with Dunn's error, which you are trying to do by not giving him his assist. He made the play and his throw got the man as evidenced by the umpire's action. Bisland, he should have an assist. Had Dunn held the ball, he would have gotten a throw himself. So you see, why shouldn't he when Dunn makes an error on Bisland's perfect play?

Union City 8, Battle Hill 6.

Union City won from the Battle Hill baseball team last Saturday, 8 to 6. This made the eighteenth straight game for the local team. The visitors have only been defeated by Battle Hill, and since that time two games have been won from the same team. The feature of Saturday's game was the pitching of Patton for Union City, who struck out eleven men.

DE PALMA DRIVES FAST OVER ELGIN COURSE

Elgin, Ill., August 25.—Better than a mile-a-minute pace was set today on the Elgin automobile race course in the initial official practices for the race to be held here Saturday. Ralph De Palma, winner of the two big races here last year, made the fastest lap—the time was 1:43 for the $1-2 mile track. Fresh oil made the track slippery and for this reason only three pacing pilots engaged in the tryouts. Pullen and Wishart were the other two. Joe Dawson drove one lap.

PETITIONS TO PREVENT FIGHTING IN CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Cal., August 25.—State Senator William D. Stephens, author of the anti-prize fight bill defeated by the last legislature, announced today that the initiative petitions now being circulated for the enactment of a law prohibiting prize fighting in California, which were opposed by the sport having been aroused to action by the death last Saturday of John Young Nelson, as the result of his bout with Jess Willard.

Vernon fight promoters stated that all scheduled bouts had been called off and indicated their intention to await the outcome of the initiative campaign.

KID COLLIER WILL TWIRL NEXT SPRING FOR RED AND BLACK

Athens, Ga., August 25.—(Special).—It has been announced as a positive fact that H. L. Collier, the former star pitcher of Tech, will be with the Red and Black forces this year. He has written Coach Cunningham that he will enter Georgia for special work and will transfer his athletic allegiance from the Atlanta end of the university system to the Athens end—and will use his best endeavors in future to defeat his former teammates. The Red and Black fans are jubilant over the acquisition of "Col."

McLoughlin Steadies.

In the second set Johnson was able to reach the net more frequently and as McLoughlin contributed a series of nets and outs, the set was put up to all. Here the champion steadied and took the set in short order. McLoughlin ended the match by the score of 33 per cent for Johnsbn.

The thirty-third championship of the United States National Lawn Tennis association, to be awarded tomorrow, was put in motion today. The action was taken at the suggestion of Cross himself on the ground that it would be best to "wait a while."

Further investigation of the cause of Young's death as a result of his injuries received in the Vernon arena with Jess Willard probably will await the verdict of the coroner's jury. Application continues for legal action to prevent prize fights at Vernon as well as elsewhere in the state.

CAMNITZ IS NOT SORE OVER HIS TRANSFER

Pittsburg, August 25.—Howard Camnitz, former star pitcher of the Pittsburg National league club, accompanied by his wife and child, left here tonight for Philadelphia. Camnitz and "Bobby" Byrne, third baseman of the local team, were traded last Saturday to the Philadelphia National league club for Doolan and a cash consideration.

Camnitz said he was going to Philadelphia to do the best work within his power.

"It's baseball business, you know, to be transferred," he said.

TENNIS CHAMPION MEETS WILLIAMS

Newport, R. I., August 25.—With comparatively little exertion R. Norris Williams, Jr., of Philadelphia, and Maurice E. McLoughlin, of San Francisco, the title winner of 1912, won their places today in the finals of the all-comers tournament for the national lawn tennis championship.

Those who fell before their racquets were Nathaniel W. Niles, of Boston, who lost to Williams in a four-set match, 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, and Wallace F. Johnson, of Philadelphia, who succumbed to McLoughlin in straight sets, 6-0, 7-5, 6-1.

Williams will seek tomorrow to wrest the title from McLoughlin, but not one person in the casino tonight thought sufficiently well of his chances to back him.

Huff, who has requested members of the Georgia delegation in congress to see that he is given an opportunity to be heard and file additional charges against Judge Emory Speer, of the United States district court, for the southern district of Georgia, now threatened with impeachment, today received from Congressman Dudley Hughes the folowing telegram:

"Washington, D. C., August 25, 1913. Hon. W. A. Huff, Macon, Ga.—Have just seen the chairman of the judiciary committee. You will be given an equal opportunity for a hearing with those for and against Judge Speer. DUDLEY M. HUGHES."

Colonel Huff has not yet received a reply from the long telegram he sent Sunday to Congressman Bartlett, making the same request of him that he made of other members of the Georgia delegation.

Convention Postponed.

Macon, Ga., August 25.—(Special.—The Frank trial has not only inconvenienced a good many of those who are directly connected with it, but others as well, even to the extent of causing the postponement of a convention in which residents of the entire southeastern section of the United States is interested.

This is the convention of the Southeastern Freight Claim association, which meets in Macon September 16-17. The date for this convention had been set for one week earlier but when F. E. Winburn, freight agent for the Atlanta and West Point, was chosen as one of the jurors in the Frank case and as it was seen that the trial was to be a prolonged one, it was decided to postpone the convention of the freight claim agents to a later date in order to give Mr. Winburn a chance to get a little rest and straighten up his business affairs after the trial was ended. Therefore the convention will not convene until September 16.

ORGANIZED BALL TO FIGHT FEDERAL LEAGUE NEXT YEAR

Chicago, August 25.—A new league which shall have the sanction of organized baseball and which shall be the weapon with which organized ball shall attack the Federal league, is planned by John Powers, deposed president of the Federal organization. He left here last night for a trip through ten cities.

Powers claims the support of certain elements in the National and American leagues, and in spite of the collapse of his plans this year he expects to be the head of a third major league.

He has been in St. Louis where he claims support has canvassed Chicago and now goes to Indianapolis, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Baltimore, New York, Montreal, Toronto and Buffalo, to confer with those in therested in a third league scheme.

It is reported that the Federal league has cut into the receipts of American association teams at Kansas City and Indianapolis and that Powers may receive aid from some association clubs. It is stated that more than one of the club owners in the Federal would welcome a chance to change but Powers would not say how many votes he could control in the league he organized last winter.

Powers, who is still nominally president of the Federal league, was given a vacation by the directors early in the season. The leave of absence is to last until fall, when it is the plan to name his successor. He broke with the club owners when he wanted to transfer a game between Pittsburg and Chicago, scheduled for Chicago, to Sheffield, Ill., his home. He secured a large guarantee and after all arrangements had been made the Chicago club refused to transfer the game. A league meeting followed at which Powers was released from his duties.

ARITHMETIC PROBLEM IN THE BISHOP'S WILL

New York, August 25.—Bishop William Turnell Sabine, the noted Reformed Episcopal churchman, who died here August 11, left a mathematical problem in his will. He is survived by nine children. A clause of the document filed today provides that the estate "of more than $20,000 in value" be partitioned so that each of the five daughters shall get one and one-half times the amount given each son.

The petitioning lawyer solved the problem by dividing the property into twenty-three parts of which each daughter is to receive three twenty-thirds of the whole, and each of the four sons two-twenty-thirds.

Profits From Garbage.

Profits from treating the garbage of the municipal reduction works in Cleveland last year amounted to $1.24 per ton, according to figures published in the Municipal Record. During the year the plant handled an average quantity of 60 tons of refuse daily. This returned a substantial profit to the city treasury. The refuse, after delivery at the plant, is first drained of water and then put through a large cooking vats, called digesters, into which is added a small quantity of lye. The "cooked" garbage is then passed through powerful presses which squeeze out the valuable tankage and grease. The grease is collected and pumped into tanks and sold. From the sale of the tankage, the report of the city received $12,256, while the recovery of various other valuable products brought the total profit up to $15,725. It cost $4,500 to run the plant for the year, leaving a net yearly profit, therefore, of $11,225.

WORLD'S CONGRESS ON SCHOOL HYGIENE

Scientists and Educators Are Holding Conference at Buffalo, N. Y.

Buffalo, N. Y., August 25.—Scientists and educators from all parts of the world assembled here today for the fourth international congress on school hygiene. The delegates numbered about 2,000. Welcome was extended by distinguished representatives of the nation state and city.

"Those who engage in the work of human uplift," Secretary William B. Wilson, of the department of labor, told the delegates on behalf of President Wilson and congress, "are frequently looked upon as dreamers, but the dreamers of today are the practical men of tomorrow. You have your dreams and out of those dreams will come a more perfect manhood and womanhood for future generations. School hygiene is one of the great problems of mankind."

School Buildings and Equipment.

School buildings and their equipment was the general topic of the sectional meetings and addresses were made by the representatives of four nations. Dr. John A. Ferrill, of the Rockefeller sanitary commission of Washington, in a paper on the spread of intestinal diseases through the rural school, declared that the work done in the south in connection with the hookworm disease indicated that its prevalence had made it a real world problem.

In three and one-half years the Rockefeller commission and health boards in eleven southern states had made 661,581 microscopic examinations for parasitic ova, he said. Of this number of persons, 329,578 were found to have hookworm. Private physicians treated 162,305 additional persons. As an indirect cause of death, Dr. Ferrell said, the hookworm probably has no equal. In many localities 80 to 100 per cent of the children in schools have been found to have the disease. The infected children make 50 per cent or less progress than is made by a normal, healthy child.

Address by Eliot and Grant.

At a general public meeting tonight addresses were made by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, and Sir James Grant, president of the National Canadian Organization committee. School life in the country, Sir James declared, offers a perfect safety valve for the rising generation, and so far as possible, the influence of the congress should be exercised to counteract the rush from country to city.

"A vast wave of sanitary science is passing around the world," he said. "The interests of the world are linked together almost as one, so hygiene, in a comprehensive sense, carried out successfully, will tend to sharpen and strengthen right thinking and greatly reduce international ill feeling."

Dr. Eliot, who is president of the congress, said the progressive civilization of the last hundred years has worked terribly against the health and perpetuity of the whole race. This, he said, is seen in the reduced vitality of the multitudes that inhabit closely built cities, in the diminishing size of families, in the incapacity of many women for bearing and nursing children, and in the disproportionate increase in the number of the insane, the defective and the criminally inclined.

Two Aggregate Defectives.

"Such cities as Paris, London, Berlin, New York and Chicago bear witness to the fact that modern civilization is at the time preparing and promoting its own destruction," he said.

"It is a plain duty of the state to provide segregations of the defective, the insane and the habitual criminal, in order to prevent the breeding of human beings from such stock. It is not yet clear how good breeding can be promoted among free men and women, but it is clear how bad breeding can and should be prevented.

"The outcome of this international congress should be the enlightenment of society concerning the means of defending civilization against its own tendencies of decay and dissolution and the strengthening of the social resolution to put into execution all the measures which christian ethics and the medical arts and sciences recommend, among the defensive measures against the evils which crowded cities and the factory system have brought to mankind the subject of this comparatively new sort of congress—school hygiene—is of first importance."

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, August 25.—As no rain of importance fell over Sunday, and the long range government forecast showed no indications of rain for the coming week, the European market advanced sharply today. This strength abroad exceeded current expectations so we opened some 14 to 16 points higher and closed firm, 23 points higher than the close. The accounts coming from the southwest are bad and many complains are coming from Alabama. European and American spinners have waited and waited believing the crop would be a large one, how ever and the trade are confronted with a rapid deterioration of the crop from prolonged drouth and hot weather and no relief in sight for a week. The Memphis Appeal report today places the condition at 69.6, which statement by itself calculated to cause serious consideration. In the afternoon the market absorbed heavy profiting, being a stronger and broader market than we have had for many months.

COTTON MOVING RIGHT ALONG TO THE MARKET

Although Crop Is Two Weeks Late, Receipts in the Moving Zone Are Reported as Heavy.

PROMISE OF CONDITIONS LIKE THOSE OF 1911

Conditions Reported Far Better Than Those of 1911, as This Year's Crop Was Made on Less Expensive Basis.

The cotton crop is moving very actively in south Georgia.

Heavy receipts are recorded throughout that part of the cotton belt south of Americus. The movement has not reached the zone north of Americus to any noticeable extent as yet, the season being at least a week or two later between Americus and Macon than south of Americus, and from two to three weeks later north of Macon.

The Constitution communicating with its correspondents in the leading cotton towns south of Americus and Augusta asked for a comparative statement of the number of bales of this year's crop received up to and through last Saturday, August 23. The result is published in the following tabulated statement from which it will be observed that the movement is going to compare favorably this year with that of two years ago, though this year the crop is at least two weeks behind that of the big year of 1911.

The general opinion expressed by The Constitution's correspondents is that this year's crop is going to run a close comparison with that of the big crop of 1911, and that conditions generally throughout the state are infinitely better than that year growing out of the fact that this year's crop was made on a very much less expensive basis than that of two years ago.

The report of the south Georgia towns so far heard from shows the number of bales received through last Saturday, August 23, to be as follows:

Dry Goods.

New York, August 25.—The downward revision in the price of standard prints and skirtings was the feature; the primary cotton goods market. The former were reduced a half cent all round, while the latter were reduced a quarter cent. A line of dry goods were moved up one-eighth cent to one-fourth cent a yard and one line of cotton cheviots was advanced one-fourth cent a yard. There was a steady application by the jobbers for filling in purposes. The demand for woolen and worsted dress goods was irregular. Some classes of goods were in fair demand, while others were sluggish. Raw silk continued to go upward. Japanese raw silk values touched the highest levels since 1907.

Gibert & Clay.

New York, August 23.—As its government reported no rain of consequence in the southwest over Sunday and current reports from the several belt sections, private and Government, buying took place during the early part of today, which advanced prices some 20 points. Spinners bought more freely, while speculative interest in the market broadened. All took the benefit of prices, of course. The deterioration now going on throughout the central and eastern states may be regarded as assurable, but advices from Texas and Oklahoma are very unfavorable for a full crop and with consumption figured at 15,000,000 bales, prescnt prices are considered comparatively cheap, however.

COTTON GAINED 23 TO 28 POINTS

Fear of Unfavorable New Crop Outturn and Bullish Estimates Caused Advance. Market Closed Near Best.

New York, August 25.—The cotton market was active and excited today, with prices making new high ground for the movement, on general buying, which reflected increasing apprehension of an unfavorable new crop outturn. There was heavy realizing on the advance and some of the old bull interests were credited with taking profits on fully 150,000 bales, but fresh buying for long account and further covering prevented anything more than slight reactions and the market closed very steady at a net gain of from 23 to 28 points.

Early weather advices indicating that the scattered showers reported on the decline of Friday had been followed by a renewal of dry weather in the southwest, and bullish private crop accounts, seemed to have attracted considerable attention abroad and the cables showed a short advance. The local market opened firm at an advance of 11 to 17 points in consequence and quickly sold about 15 to 20 points net higher.

Realizing caused slight reactions from this level, but the report of a prominent Memphis authority placing the average condition of the crop on only 69.6 against 79.6 last month and 74.8 last year, was against any aggressive selling for a short account.

Local bulls who had been active buyers last week, were credited with selling freely on the advance, but houses with Wall street connections, New Orleans, Memphis and the southwest, were buyers here, while there was also an active demand from Wall street and local shorts. This readily absorbed realizing sales and the market reached the best point of the day in the late trading, when December and later deliveries made new high records for the season.

Closing prices were within a point or two of the best. In addition to the unfavorable condition report from Memphis, there were numerous private advices claiming a poor crop outlook from both the western and eastern sections of the belt and one of the private wires from Oklahoma estimated the crop in that state at only 750,000 bales.

Expectations of a bullish weekly report and of other bullish private condition reports before the end of the week doubtlessly contributed to the advance.

New Orleans Cotton.

New Orleans, August 25.—The cotton market took on a new aspect today as private crop reports of crop deterioration in Texas and Oklahoma assumed significant and high proportions. Alarming stories of crop failure came in from many points in the two states and were accompanied by small crop estimates. A feature of the day was the private bureau estimates of Oklahoma circulated. They put the state in condition for August at about 10 points, a decline of the state for the month of 38 points. The opening was very steady at an advance of 18 to 21 points on the bullish comment and reported continued fair weather for the cotton belt. JONES NOMINATED FOR POSTMASTER

Exactly when Mr. Jones will take charge of the office, relieving Hugh L. McKee incumbent, is not known by even Mr. Jones himself he said last evening.

After Mr. Jones' nomination has been confirmed it will be up to him to make the bond required by the department, that bond now being $135,000, and which he will have no trouble in supplying. His commission will be sent him from the postoffice department at Washington, after which his next step will be to take charge of the Atlanta office. It will require several days to equip himself for assuming his official position, so it is safe to say nothing will be done in the way of a transfer before the end of the present month. In fact, in the absence of information from Washington Mr. Jones says he hasn't the slightest idea when he will take charge.

Promises Business Administration.

"When I do take charge of the office," said Mr. Jones, "I shall run it on a strictly business basis. I shall not be in a hurry to make any changes, for the simple reason that I will have much to learn. In fact, I do not contemplate displacing a man or naming one until I shall actually have taken over the office."

Mr. Jones expressed great faith in the civil service and said he would adhere to it where he could. He also declared emphatically that every man in the office who has measured up to the requirements of the Fulton Notation would be continued in the service if protected by the civil service rules.

The new postmaster asserted that he had not settled upon an assistant or any other member of his personal staff, but would not declare he did not have names under consideration.

"There'll be no politics in that postoffice," he declared.

Mr. Jones is a native of Virginia and has been a prominent citizen of Atlanta fifteen years, during which time he has made a most excellent business record. He is secretary and treasurer of the Atlanta Stove works, of which his brother, Sam D. Jones, is president; vice president of the Fulton National bank; a director of the Continental Trust company; a director of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association and the association of Credit Men, and a director of the Atlanta Freight Bureau, in which latter organization he was chairman of the board of directors last year.

He has also always been a hard worker for the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Has Not Yet Resigned.

When advised of Mr. Jones' appointment Monday, Postmaster McKee declared that so far he had not sent in his resignation to the department, and asserted he would not do so until the charges against him were withdrawn or the resignation asked for political and not business reasons.

"The statement I made in the papers ten days ago when I received that letter stands now as it did then," continuing Postmaster McKee remarked smilingly: "'To the victor belongs the spoils' seems to be the sentiment of our democratic brethren. They are a lean and hungry lot, and are entitled to care not whether they accomplish their ends by fair or unfair methods, but this is a matter that I have nothing to do with."

However, when Mr. Jones presents his commission to Mr. McKee when he gets ready to take over the office there will be nothing for him to do except turn over the office to Mr. Jones, take his receipt and vacate.

LIND QUITS MEXICO MEXIC MESSAGE TODAY

world the sympathetic feeling that the United States government and the American people have for their neighbors in the rebellion-torn republics south of the Rio Grande. It records the views of the United States on constitutional government as opposed to opposition to governments set up by the irregular and arbitrary acts of ambitious individuals and formally announces that the government of Victoriano Huerta shall not be recognized. The efforts of the United States to bring about a peaceful settlement of the difficulty through the representations made by John Lind, special envoy of President Wilson, are outlined, as well as the answer of the Huerta government.

What United States Proposes.

The United States has proposed that a constitutional election be held and that Huerta should not be a candidate. To these suggestions, through which the United States hoped peace could be restored, Huerta has replied in the negative. Foreign governments generally since that rejection have been active in support of the American policy to persuade Huerta to yield. There was still some hope at the white house tonight that word of concessions may be telegraphed from Mexico City before the president goes to the capitol tomorrow to read his message, and perhaps result in an abandonment of the idea at this time.

The delivery of the message is an essential factor in the program of the American government before the world. It is not a preliminary to any drastic measures, however; it is merely the announcement of a policy which will be maintained for years if necessary until constitutional government shall be re-established in Mexico.

The effect of the message, it is hoped by administration officials, will be to convince the world of the sincere efforts of the United States to bring about peace and forestall pressure that might otherwise have been exerted by foreign governments for a sterner policy towards Mexico.

Having exhausted every avenue of influence on the Mexican authorities, the administration does not feel compelled to intervene by force of arms to establish its views. Every opportunity will be given to American citizens to withdraw from the danger zones and strict neutrality in shipments of arms will be observed.

Conference at White House.

The white house conference began at 8:30 o'clock. The president's private office looked like a school room. Divans, davenports, sofas and chairs were arranged in equal rows in front of the president's desk. There were assembled the cabinet officers, members of the senate foreign relations committee and the house foreign affairs committee. Secretary Bryan sat beside the president as the latter read his message.

The conference adjourned a few minutes before 11 o'clock, after the president had read his message and listened to a free discussion for more than an hour. He had asked for suggestions and comments and nearly every one present had something ...

AMERICAN IS MURDERED BY HUERTA'S TROOPS

Washington, August 25.—State department officials today received the attack by Mexican federals upon employees of the Madera Lumber company in Madera, Mexico, said that Edmond Hayes, Jr., and a negro known as "Tom" were killed. General Cordoba, commanding the federals in that vicinity, immediately arrested all of the men implicated in the attack, according to the report.

Hayes was killed, the consul at Chihuahua reported, by a bandit named Castillo, who, with about eighty men, recently allied himself with the forces of General Cordoba.

Urgent instructions were sent to the consul at Chihuahua to see to "the prompt and adequate punishment of those who committed this outrage on American citizens."

Part of Castillo's band attacked the Rubio ranch properties a little south of Madera, which are owned by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst. The employees defended the property successfully, but during the fight several were killed on each side. The "immediate and adequate protection" for this property has been demanded by the department.

The American embassy at Mexico city has been instructed to insist upon the apprehension and punishment of twenty-three independent guerrillas who killed Ben Criffen, an American citizen, and assaulted another, Archer F. Parks, near Madera.

BRITON AND GERMAN MURDERED BY MEXICANS

Mexico City, August 25.—The murder of Arthur Lawton, a British subject, and Otto Thalen, a German, on Senor Eduardo Iturbide's ranch, in western Michoacan, was officially reported today. The British minister has sent notification to his home office.

Lawton was well connected in England. He was related by marriage to Zelia Nuttall, the noted archaeologist, formerly of San Francisco and now of Mexico, who holds the honorary professorship of archaeology of the National Museum. Von Thaden's mother is an American.

The men were employed at the ranch and at the time of their murder had in their possession a large amount of money for the payment of the men. They were robbed by their murderers, who are characterized as bandits, not rebels.

JEROME ARRIVES TO FIGHT THAW

But White's Slayer Just Sneers at His Ancient Enemy. Thaw's Case May Assume International Aspect.

Sherbrooke, Quebec, August 25.—The arrival of William Travers Jerome, Harry Kendall Thaw's old prosecutor, the assumption by ex-Governor William A. Stone, of Pennsylvania, of the position of spokesman here for the Thaw family pending the coming of Roger O'Mara, the Pittsburg detective, the injection into the case of renewed talk of its assuming international aspects, were briefly the chief developments of the day in Sherbrooke since Stanford White's slayer fled from Matteawan.

If Thaw was terrorized by Jerome's coming, he succeeded in concealing the feeling to all who visited him in his cell. Again he spoke of Jerome sneeringly, calling him "Willie," and insisted that his lawyers re-issue a summary of remarks he made in 1908 when he said that no one had ever contended Thaw was insane.

International Twist to Case.

The possibility of an international twist in the case came when ex-Governor Stone raised the point that a Canadian embroiled in the dominion's iron-clad immigration law regulations would doubtless have a right to appeal to the courts. Thaw, it had been said, would have no such privilege as to the matter of the interior at Ottawa. Mr. Stone regarded this as contrary to the treaty between Canada and the United States, guaranteeing to Americans citizens before Canadian courts the same rights as Canadians.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Stone, "the snow will be deep in Sherbrooke before Thaw leaves Canadian soil."

Mr. Jerome arrived in town about 1:45 o'clock this afternoon. He had come by automobile all the way from Nyack, N. Y., whence he departed Saturday.

"The question of extraditing Thaw from Vermont," he said, "will rest entirely with the governor. Politics sometimes enters into cases of this sort. Both sides can present their case to the governor in the form of briefs, then it is up to the governor to do just as he pleases. The relations of our states are uncertain in the matter of extradition."

So many versions were current of what will happen after Thaw is turned over to the immigration authorities that it was a case of take your choice. This led to the belief that at Ottawa, and Ottawa only, were decisions to be reached.

The Point of Deportation.

Tonight it was said it would be necessary to take the prisoner to Coaticook, a port of entry, and have the session of the so-called immigration held.

Thaw will, of course, be represented by counsel and will have the right to produce witnesses in his behalf. The questions which will be fought out are whether he is an undesirable alien, either as a lunatic or a person confined in a lunatic asylum within a period of five years, or a person who crossed the border by stealth and misrepresentation.

Norton Mills, Vt., a station ten miles southeast of Coaticook, is the point tentatively selected for handing Thaw back across the border. In anticipation of this, the New York interests it was said, were laying plans for his immediate detention once he is on Vermont soil, on the warrants issued at Poughkeepsie, charging Thaw with conspiring with Howard Barnum, the old Matteawan gatekeeper, and others in his plot to escape. Whether the Vermont authorities will regard such a warrant as void, inasmuch as Thaw is legally a lunatic in New York not chargeable with any crime, is problematical.

Statement by Thaw.

As a step in hatching his publicity campaign, Thaw's counsel at Sherbrooke daily today a personally prepared statement. In part it said:

"In Vermont we know where there are good Americans and that—not on my account, but just from uprightness they won't allow any trickery to be used against anyone.

"In Matteawan I saw a good deal of an old Vermont lawyer, Arthur Austin. Mr. Austin may have suffered from mental disturbance some years ago, but after 1908 he was sane, yet was kept apparently for life.

"In 1913 Mr. Austin, who already had been sane three years, still was in the prison hospital house, with apparently no hope. In 1911 a friend and I started in and exposed abuses too long to enter into.

"During these exposures we took out sworn statements and though my influence was too small to help myself, it was great enough to help others. For months I fought, and several months I gave him employment until early this year he went out west to the home of his son.

"From Mr. Austin I heard much of Vermonters and Vermont. I was there were it not for going to my native state.

One Thing Sure, Says Thaw.

"Vermonters have communicated with counsel and me and one thing is sure:

"No subterfuge from New York county can pull over their eyes.

"Canadians of all sorts have told us that there is not the least doubt that their immigration authorities if they should be called upon will arrange for me to return home. If the states have differences between themselves they say it is no affair of the dominion's. A citizen of the United States, once I was acquitted by a New York jury, I had the same rights as every other citizen in the eyes of the law and no one honestly respecting the law desires to nullify the verdict of that jury.

"No grand jury can be got, even by picking, that would indict me on the trumped up charge now whispered about and no self-respecting one of the states would assist the framers of this fictitious charge.

"Thaw's fellow citizens would be shocked if Canada yielded where another state in the United States itself would not."

FLOYD C. COOPER, JR. HURT BY MOTORCYCLE

Floyd C. Cooper, Jr., 6-year-old son of Floyd C. Cooper, 286 East Pine street, was knocked down and seriously injured Saturday afternoon by a motorcycle ridden by Ralph Landrum, 39 West Peachtree street, as the little fellow in company with his mother was alighting from a bus in front of the home of Commissioner Tull Waters, on the McDonough road.

The little fellow was making an excursion with his mother to visit Mrs. Waters, and about 5 o'clock they dismounted from the Lakewood Heights bus and started across the road. As they reached the middle of the road, Ralph Landrum, mounted on a powerful motorcycle, with a girl as a passenger behind, swept around the bus at a fast rate of speed and knocked the boy to the side of the road. Landrum and the girl were thrown from the motor, but escaped without injury.

Little Floyd, Jr., was taken to the Piedmont Sanatorium for treatment, where it was found that his injuries consisted of a badly fractured jaw, and lacerated eye, besides a number of minor hurts. Mr. Cooper stated last night that the boy was entirely out of danger, and that the physicians now hope to save the eye that was torn.

$25,000,000 ALLOTTED TO SOUTHERN BANKS

Washington, August 25.—Ten per cent or $6,000,000 already has been deposited in southern banks out of the $50,000,000 fund that the government is placing with national banks in the agricultural states to aid in the movement of crops. The total amount apportioned to cities in the cotton states was unofficially announced today to be $25,000,000.

Allotment of the southern fund has not yet been completed but it was said at the treasury department that the banks in Georgia would receive $1,700,000, of which Atlanta is to get $800,000, the remainder to be shared by Augusta, Macon and Savannah, each probably receiving $300,000.
